

POETRY ESSAY

Question:

Analyse the following poem. Your response must include detailed discussion of how meanings are shaped in the poem.

'To My Daughter In A Red Coat' by Anne Stevenson, seems to be a free verse and reflective poem regarding a parent who is looking back on a memory of when they took their daughter on a walk through the park. The poem conveys, using simple language, how much life and energy the daughter brings into the parent's world, an overwhelming amount. The poem is written in the present tense even though the memory is in the past, it seems as if the mother is reliving the memory. However, this is juxtaposed by the restrictive structure of the poem, which creates the idea of the speaker's emotions being more complex than the reader initially thinks.

In her poem, Stevenson presents life to be unmeaningful and bland. Life seems to be uninteresting until her daughter arrives. The parent seems to view life in a very restrictive way, shown through the language which is quite blunt and unfriendly. The language doesn't coax the reader into the poem, which is seen through the opening line: 'Late October. It is afternoon.' The language feels mechanical, almost as if the speaker is just saying the necessary details to fill the reader in as fast as possible. There appears to be no real significance or meaning to the words, which could reflect their dull view on life. The tone seems robotic and cold; it isn't a warm poem as what the reader may expect from a

This volume of previously unpublished essays on Anglo Saxon poetry has been created in honor of John C McGalliard on the occasion of his retirement from the University of Iowa after a distinguished career as a scholar teacher of medieval literatures As a critical anthology designed to respond to all of the major and most of the minor poems in the Anglo Saxon canon this collection will prove valuable to every class in Anglo Saxon whether introductory or advanced The twenty five essays take up individual problems concerned with the interpretation of specific poems In offering their solutions to these problems the contributors evince their great love of poetry and their impressive knowledge of Anglo Saxon scholarship The contributors who include Robert P Greed Charles Donahue Norman E Eliason John Gardner Margaret Goldsmith Stanley Greenfield Alvin A Lee Burton Raffle Fred C Robinson Alain Renoir and Robert Stevick are prominent among the world wide community of Anglo Saxonists and represent the entire range of critical approaches to Old English Literature Their lively willingness to accept specific titular assignments is a tribute to the man who inspired this project Among them are practicing poets novelists and translators a reflection of the genuine humanism and erudition of Professor McGalliard It is the editors hope that the ongoing usefulness of this book whose attractive critical unity springs from the self limited nature of the Anglo Saxon poetic corpus will constitute an added honorific dimension The editors are both former students of John C McGalliard Lewis E Nicholson is Associate Professor of English at the University of Notre Dame He has published essays on Anglo Saxon poetry and is editor of An Anthology of Beowulf Criticism Delores Warwick Frese is Assistant Professor of English at the University of Notre Dame In addition to scholarly articles she has published two novels as well as poems and short stories
