Electronic Media and Technoculture John Thornton Caldwell, 2000 Never before has the future been so systematically envisioned aggressively analyzed and grandly theorized as in the present rush to cyberspace and digitalization. In the mid twentieth century questions about media technologies and society first emerged as scholarly hand wringing about the deleterious sweep of electronic media and information technologies in mass culture. Now questions about new technologies and their social and cultural impact are no longer limited to intellectual soothsayers in the academy but are pervasive parts of day to day discourses in newspapers magazines television and film. Electronic Media and Technoculture anchors contemporary discussion of the digital future within a critical tradition about the media arts society and culture. The collection examines a range of phenomena from boutique cyber practices to the growing ubiquity of e commerce and the internet. The essays chart a critical field in media studies providing a historical perspective on theories of new media. The contributors place discussions of producing technologies in dialogue with consuming technologies new media in relation to old media and argue that digital media should not be restricted to the constraining public discourses of either the computer broadcast motion picture or internet industries.

The collection charts a range of theoretical positions to assist readers interested in new media and to enable them to weather the cycles of hardware obsolescence and theoretical volatility that characterize the present rush toward digital technologies. Contributors include Ien Ang, John Caldwell, Cynthia Cockburn, Helen Cunningham, Hans Magnus Enzensberger, Guillermo Gomez Pea, Arthur Kroker, Bill Nichols, Andrew Ross, Ellen Seiter, Vivian Sobchack, Allucqure Rosanne Stone, Ravi Sundaram, Michael A. Weinstein, Raymond Williams, and Brian Winston. John Thornton Caldwell is chair of the film and television department at the University of California at Los Angeles. Electronic Media Law Roger L. Sadler, 2005-03-10. Even though the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution grants freedom of speech and freedom of the press, laws and regulations governing media frequently evolve as the media themselves do. As a result, it is often a challenge to keep pace with new laws and regulations. Electronic Media Law is a comprehensive up-to-date textbook on the constantly changing and often complex world of electronic media law. Author Roger L. Sadler examines the laws, regulations, and court rulings affecting broadcasting, cable, satellite, and cyberspace. The book also looks at cases from the print media and general First Amendment law because they often contain important concepts that are relevant to the electronic media. Electronic Media Law is written for mass media students, not for future lawyers, so the text is straightforward and explains legalese. The author covers First Amendment law, political broadcasting rules, broadcast content regulations, FCC rules for station operations, cable regulation, media ownership rules, media liability, lawsuits, intrusive newsgathering methods, media restrictions during wartime, libel, privacy, copyright, advertising law, freedom of information, cameras in the court, and privilege. Key Features: Provides an easy-to-use format of chapter categories and sections that facilitate research on individual topics; Frequently Asked Questions highlight important points from cases; Explains complex legal concepts in basic terms that give students the foundation for further studies in electronic media law. Electronic Media Law provides an understanding of the First Amendment and the American legal system with an emphasis on the electronic media. It is an excellent textbook for undergraduate and graduate students studying broadcast law and media law.
