McDonald, 2006-01-24 Erskine Caldwell has been compared to literary giants like Faulkner and Hemingway yet he has also been reviled as peddler of pop trash Was he a genius or just a shooting star whose brilliance faded long before he stopped writing Caldwell began his career in the late 1920s and gained fame for revealing the gritty backwoods South in novels such as his seminal Tobacco Road He wrote prolifically sometimes as much as a book a year As the editor of this book maintains perhaps anyone who wrote so much would inevitably stumble These 12 essays explore a variety of issues They discuss Caldwell as humorist social commentator modernist and revolutionary novelist They examine his themes and tropes political images social injustice the environment ideological struggles and his use of artistic devices short stories cubist strategies repetition A generous bibliography includes not only books on Caldwell but also chapters and forewords journal articles essays news items and obituaries The reader is encouraged to look at Caldwell with fresh eyes to press beyond his controversial image and to compare his works especially his early ones to those of any of the top names in literature The People's Writer Wayne Mixon, 1995 Most critics have considered Caldwell to be only a minor southern writer often associating him with his worst writing Yet Saul Bellow suggested he deserved the Nobel Prize and William Faulkner once characterized him as one of the five best writers of his time alongside himself Thomas Wolfe Ernest Hemingway and John Dos Passos
