Georgia's Roster of the Revolution Lucian Lamar Knight, 2015-07-20 Excerpt from Georgia's Roster of the Revolution Containing a List of the State's Defenders Officers and Men Soldiers and Sailors Partisans and Regulars Whether Enlisted From Georgia or Settled in Georgia After the Close of Hostilities After the lapse of more than a century the difficulty of compiling a Roster of Georgia troops in the Revolution can be readily imagined Much of the information which an earlier period might have furnished is now unhappily beyond our reach Many important records have been lost To compile an exhaustive roster therefore is humanly impossible The utmost at which we can aim is an approximate degree of accuracy within the limits of meager details and to place before the public all the data which at this late hour can be obtained from official sources Georgia did not furnish a large body of troops to the Revolutionary struggle She was the youngest of the English colonies and with only a scant population was situated on the remote southern frontier Nevertheless the Georgia contingent gave a good account of itself whether in the Continental Army or in the Home Guard whether in overthrowing Toryism or in expelling British Regulars At the close of hostilities with England she rewarded her brave defenders with substantial grants of land To encourage the rapid settlement of her territory by the best class of immigrants she offered handsome inducements to the veterans of independence and thousands availing themselves of this offer took the mountain trails which led to Georgia Two large counties Franklin and Washington carved out of lands then recently acquired from the Indians were subdivided among the new comers a large percentage of whom were soldiers from other States compatriots and comrades in arms of the great Washington The grants made to these soldiers were called bounties Thus it came to pass that while the contributions of Georgia to the army of independence were numerically small she acquired a vast body of veterans who here found permanent homes and today there is hardly a State in the Union whose soil is richer in Revolutionary dust The earlier land grants were in the nature of Head Rights These in time were superseded by grants made under the old Lottery System Elsewhere in an article written by the late Secretary of State Hon Philip Cook the differences between the two methods of distributing land are fully explained Records still exist in the Capitol showing in many instances at least to whom these lands were deeded Certificates from superior officers attesting the fidelity of men under them are still preserved and from sources of information like these the roster has been obtained Other helpful sources have been the Pension Rolls of the United States Government the records of the Federal War Department and the reports of the Smithsonian Institution It is the aim of this roster to Include within Its survey not only all Georgians who enlisted in the struggle for independence during the seven years of its continuance but also all soldiers from other States who settled in Georgia subsequent thereto Too much credit in the preparation of this work cannot be given to help received from others About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com Roster of Revolutionary Soldiers in Georgia Mrs. Howard H.
