Georgian London John Summerson, Howard Montagu Colvin, 2003 In this classic of English architectural history John Summerson provides an account of a major building period in the history of London Encompassing the architecture of the capital from the Great Fire of 1666 through the city's early 19th century expansion it explores the genesis and development of Georgian London Summerson examines the way in which building was conditioned by social economic and financial circumstances and discusses some of Britain's most important buildings and their architects The Georgian London Town House Kate Retford, Susanna Avery-Quash, 2019-03-07 For every great country house of the Georgian period there was usually also a town house Chatsworth for example the home of the Devonshires has officially been recognised as one of the country's favourite national treasures but most of its visitors know little of Devonshire House which the family once owned in the capital In part this is because town houses were often leased rather than being passed down through generations as country estates were But most crucially many London town houses including Devonshire House no longer exist having been demolished in the early twentieth century This book seeks to place centre stage the hugely important yet hitherto overlooked town houses of the eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries exploring the prime position they once occupied in the lives of families and the nation as a whole It explores the owners how they furnished and used these properties and how their houses were judged by the various types of visitor who gained access The Town House in Georgian London Rachel Stewart, 2009 This title takes a fresh look at a familiar building type the town house in 18th century London and investigates the circumstances in which individuals made decisions about living in London and particularly about their West End house

Building the British Atlantic World Daniel Maudlin, Bernard L. Herman, 2016-03-11 Spanning the North Atlantic rim from Canada to Scotland and from the Caribbean to the coast of West Africa the British Atlantic world is deeply interconnected across its regions In this groundbreaking study thirteen leading scholars explore the idea of transatlanticism or a shared Atlantic world experience through the lens of architecture built spaces and landscapes in the British Atlantic from the seventeenth century through the mid nineteenth century Examining town planning churches forts merchants stores state houses and farm houses this collection shows how the powerful visual language of architecture and design allowed the people of this era to maintain common cultural experiences across different landscapes while still forming their individuality By studying the interplay between physical construction and social themes that include identity gender taste domesticity politics and race the authors interpret material culture in a way that particularly emphasizes the people who built occupied and used the spaces and reflects the complex cultural exchanges between Britain and the New World      Mastering the Niger David Lambert,2013-11-15 In Mastering the Niger David Lambert recalls Scotsman James MacQueen 1778 1870 and his publication of A New Map of Africa in 1841 to show that Atlantic slavery as a practice of subjugation a source of wealth and a focus of political struggle was entangled with the production circulation and reception of geographical knowledge The British empire banned the slave trade in 1807 and abolished slavery itself in 1833 creating a need for a new British imperial economy Without ever setting foot on the continent MacQueen took on the task of solving the Niger problem that is to successfully map the course of the river and its tributaries and thus breathe life into his scheme for the exploration colonization and commercial exploitation of West Africa Lambert illustrates how MacQueen s geographical research began four decades before the publication of the New Map when he was managing a sugar estate on the West Indian colony of Grenada There MacQueen encountered slaves with firsthand knowledge of West Africa whose accounts would form the basis of his geographical claims Lambert examines the inspirations and foundations for MacQueen s geographical theory as well as its reception arguing that Atlantic slavery and ideas for alternatives to it helped produce geographical knowledge while geographical discourse informed the struggle over slavery      Pictures and Popery Clare Haynes,2017-05-15 The part religion played in questions of national identity in early modern England is a familiar historical theme yet little work has been done on how this worked culturally Nowhere is this more visible than in the seeming contradiction of a militantly Protestant nation such as England that had a high regard for Catholic art It is this dichotomy the tensions between art and anti Catholicism that forms the central investigation of this book During the late seventeenth and eighteenth century religious art was closely identified with idolatry and the use of images was one of the most obvious markers of the boundary between Protestantism and Catholicism This manifested itself in an unease about the status of the religious image in English society which was articulated in religious tracts anti Catholic propaganda polemical debate court cases and numerous other places In light of these attacks upon idolatry the fact that a great deal of Catholic art was so highly regarded and sought after seems puzzling By discussing English attitudes towards the works of Italian painters including Raphael Michelangelo and Domenichino and the ways in which native artists sought appropriately Protestant ways of emulating them this volume offers a fascinating perspective on the dichotomy that existed between English appreciation and disapproval of Catholic culture By taking this cultural and artistic approach and applying it to the broader historical themes a new and invigorating way of understanding religion and national identity is offered      The Fraud Barbara Ewing,2010-01-06 1765 Filippo di Vecellio of Florence portrait painter is the toast of London rich successful and married to Angelica known as the most beautiful woman in the city Their Pall Mall home is the hub of the art world their impressive social gatherings run so smoothly by Filippo s silent sister Francesca But beneath the surface the house conceals a swarm of dangerous secrets Where does Francesca di Vecellio go as the sun sets over Covent Garden And why are there always candles lit in her attic while no candles burn for her brother's exquisite wife Within the bustling artistic lives of the di Vecellios hides corruption and lies love and tragedy

And wild ambition unbalances the capital's art world as finally a wonderful portrait battles for the right to paint the truth
