German Pocket Battleships:

Pocket Battleships of the Deutschland Class Gerhard Koop, Klaus-Peter Schmolke, 2014-03-10 The warships of the World War II era German Navy are among the most popular subject in naval history with an almost uncountable number of books devoted to them However for a concise but authoritative summary of the design history and careers of the major surface ships it is difficult to beat a series of six volumes written by Gerhard Koop and illustrated by Klaus Peter Schmolke Each contains an account of the development of a particular class a detailed description of the ships with full technical details and an outline of their service heavily illustrated with plans battle maps and a substantial collection of photographs These have been out of print for ten years or more and are now much sought after by enthusiasts and collectors so this new modestly priced reprint of the series will be widely welcomed This volume covers the three ships of a design so revolutionary that it defied conventional categories Deutschland later renamed L tzow Admiral Scheer and Admiral Graf Spee were simply termed panzerschiffe armoured ships by the Germans but they were known to their opponents by the far more evocative term Pocket Battleships

The German Pocket Battleship Admiral Graf Spee Stefan Draminski, 2015-04-02 The Deutschland class ships were the first heavy vessels of the German Navy after the First World War In Germany they were classified as Panzerschiffe but in other countries the term pocket battleships was very popular The third and last vessel of this class was Admiral Graf Spee She was laid down on 1 October 1932 launched on 30 June 1934 and commissioned on 6 January 1936 During the Spanish Civil War the ship patrolled coastal waters of this country Before the outbreak of the Second World War on 21 August 1939 the ship steamed out for the Atlantic From 26 September she was fighting Allied shipping sinking nine British vessels On the morning of 13 December Graf Spee encountered a group of Allied warships the heavy cruiser HMS Exeter and light cruisers HMS Ajax and HMNZS Achilles near South American coast The gun battle that ensued went to the history as the Battle of the River Plate Both the Exeter and her German enemy were damaged during the course of the engagement The commander of Graf Spee Kapit n zur See Hans Langsdorff decided to break off the battle and enter the nearby port of Montevideo in Uruguay According to the international law the German corsair could not stay in a neutral port longer than 72 hours Convinced that massive British forces were concentrating in the vicinity and hence the escape was impossible Langsdorff decided to save the crew and scuttle the ship On 17 December Admiral Graf Spee steamed to the roadstead and there the explosive charges were fired The German ship sunk in shallow waters and her commander shot himself three days later in a hotel in Buenos Aires The wreckage was penetrated even during the war by British divers in order to recover more valuable items and obtain information about German technology In the post war years many single parts of the ship were recovered

German Pocket Battleships 1939-45 Gordon Williamson, 2012-04-20 After the end of World War I the German Navy came up with the concept of the Panzerschiffe or Pocket Battleship as a method of circumventing treaty limitations on the size and types of ship Germany was permitted to build New more modern production
