Joshi, 2012-12-06 Although anecdotal reports of loss of once acquired reading ability was noticed in the individuals who had sustained brain damage as early as the year AD 30 systematic enquires of alexia were not undertaken until the latter part of the nineteenth century The two anatomo pathological studies carried out by Dejerine in 1891 and 1892 mark the beginning of scholarly investigation of reading failure Interestingly the study of developmental reading disability also began to receive attention at about the same time when Pringle Morgan described the case of a 14 year old boy who had great difficulty in reading and writing Since then sporadic reports of developmental reading writing failure began to appear in medical and educational journals even though such investigation went on at an unhurried pace In the past two decades however the situation has changed enormously and hundreds of articles that have investigated developmental and acquired cognitive disabilities have been published Disorders of spoken language and written language are two areas that have been extensively addressed by these articles Those who study disorders of language come from a wide variety of backgrounds and their reports are also published in a variety of journals The purpose of the present volume is to bring some important research findings of written language disorders together and present them in a coherent format In Chapter 1 Joshi and Aaron challenge the validity of the notion of the putative poor speller but good reader      Using German Vocabulary Sarah M. international communications English has long become the lingua franca of the globalising economy and this study set out to investigate how well SMEs are prepared to meet the linguistic requirements imposed on them by global business Enterprises in the new German states are widely believed to be disadvantaged with regard to their communicative competence in English since English played only a minor role for decades but has risen to decisive significance within the past couple of years taking many companies and their employees by surprise finding them not as well prepared as their colleagues in the old German states Still finding their way to the new export markets in Western Europe the Americas and Asia are vital for the survival of Saxon economy and communicative competence in English as the lingua franca of international business is the major prerequisite for achieving this objective Corporate communicative competence involves various aspects including the foreign language skills of the employees covering the entire range of linguistic skills from oral communication including listening and speaking giving presentations or participating in negotiations to writing skills ranging from reading and writing of various text types including media literacy Apart from the personal linguistic competence of the employees the corporate linguistic competence of the company also plays a major role for the perception of the company on its international markets Therefore this study focused on investigating how well SMEs present themselves in their corporate literature and on the internet which instruments from the wide ranging selection of marketing tools they apply for communicating

Recent Advances in Corpus Linguistics Lieven Vandelandotte, Kristin Davidse, Caroline Gentens, Ditte Kimps, 2014-08-15 This book is a selection of studies presented at the 33rd International Conference of the International Computer Archive of Modern and Medieval English ICAME hosted by the University of Leuven 30 May 3 June 2012 The strictly refereed and extensively revised contributions collected here represent recent advances in corpus linguistics both in the development of specialist corpora and in ways of exploiting them for specific purposes The first part focuses on Corpus development and corpus interrogation and features papers on the compilation of new highly specialized corpora which aim to fill gaps in historical databases and on new ways of extracting relevant patterns automatically from computerized datasets The second part devoted to Specialist corpora presents detailed descriptive studies on grammatical patterns in World Englishes on neology and using a contrastive approach on prepositions and cohesive conjunctions The third and final part on Second language acquisition groups together studies situated at the intersection of corpus linguistics and educational linguistics and dealing with markers of relevance and lesser relevance in lectures deceptive cognates the automatic annotation of native and non native uses of demonstrative this and that and measuring learners progress in speech and in writing Each contribution in its own way reports on novel ways of getting mileage out of specialist corpora and collectively the contributions attest to the rude health of computerized corpus linguistic studies

Developmental Orthography Philip A. Luelsdorff, 1991-09-13 Philip Luelsdorff's highly original approach to the grammar of orthography is to analyse in detail how German pupils learn about written English In this collection of essays and experiments we are presented with the rich finds of a decade of programmatic research The context is set with an exposition of current cognitive models of reading and spelling Cognitive psychology and psycholinguistics meet in Luelsdorff's concept of linguistic error This concept forms the basis from which it is possible to derive the grammar that governs our largely unconscious and vast knowledge of written words It is proper to talk about a grammar for both orthographic and syntactic aspects of language This is because spelling knowledge is not piecemeal or erratic but bears all the hallmarks of a system Through second language orthography the author is showing us a new view of this advanced stage of spelling knowledge and its acquisition This view is exciting because it seems now possible to form very detailed hypotheses as regards first language spelling about the order in which purely orthographic knowledge is developed
