Germanic Accentology Vol I The Scandinavian Languages:

Germanic Accentology Anatoly Liberman, 1982-06-28 Germanic Accentology was first published in 1982 Minnesota Archive Editions uses digital technology to make long unavailable books once again accessible and are published unaltered from the original University of Minnesota Press editions The Scandinavian languages are among the few living Indo European languages that possess a ramified system of special tones or accents Such accents are widespread in the languages of Africa and Asia creating for example the singsong character of Chinese and Vietnamese but in the vast territory occupied by the Indo European family only the Scandinavian languages some German dialects Lithuanian Latvian and Serbo Croatian have similar accentologies The function and origin of the Scandinavian accents are central problems facing linguists and are the issues that Anatoly Liberman confronts in this book Liberman uses the methods of synchronic and diachronic phonology to explore the current status of Scandinavian accentology and to reconstruct its historical development In the first synchronic group of chapters he analyzes the accents and accent like phenomena in all the modern Scandinavian languages comparing the literary languages with spoken dialects and drawing from all of the published descriptions of and theories about Scandinavian prosody In the final diachronic chapter he presents a new hypothesis on the origins of Scandinavian accentology based upon his descriptive material Throughout his theoretical approach is that of a functionalist
