

A sepia-toned photograph of a study desk. In the background, a vintage typewriter sits on the desk. In the foreground, an open book lies flat, with a pair of round-rimmed glasses resting on its right page. A quill pen is positioned horizontally across the bottom of the open book. To the right of the book, a small, ornate lamp with a glass chimney and a decorative base is visible. The background is dark and out of focus, suggesting a window or a distant light source. The overall mood is quiet and scholarly.

Melville,2014-12-22 Hawthorne and His Mosses 1850 is an essay and critical review by Herman Melville of the short story collection Mosses from an Old Manse written by Nathaniel Hawthorne in 1846 Published anonymously by a Virginian spending July in Vermont it appeared in the New York Literary World magazine in two issues August 17 and August 24 1850 An early literary expression of the mid nineteenth century Young America movement the work has been cited as an important commentary on and analysis of the emerging New American Literature Melville met the author Nathaniel Hawthorne at a picnic and an ensuing hike up Monument Mountain in the Berkshires of western Massachusetts on August 5 1850 Also among the hikers were James Thomas Fields Cornelius Mathews and Oliver Wendell Holmes Sr Melville and Hawthorne established an immediate and intense connection As a local journalist would later write the two were compelled to take shelter in a narrow recess of the rocks Two hours of enforced intercourse settled the matter They learned so much of each other s character and found that they held so much of thought feeling and opinion in common that the most intimate friendship for the future was inevitable Melville had previously been given a copy of Mosses from an Old Manse as a gift but had not read it It is unclear if he began writing the review of the book before or after meeting Hawthorne He was however certainly impressed by Hawthorne and though the book had been published four years previously he completed his review Another of the hikers Evert Augustus Duyckinck publisher of the periodical New York Literary World offered to delay his departure for New York city until the manuscript was ready As publisher of Hawthorne and friend of Melville he saw its appearance in his magazine as a win win situation Before learning the identity of the then anonymous author Hawthorne s wife Sophia declared the essay to be written by the first person who has ever in print apprehended Mr Hawthorne When she discovered it was Melville she called him an invaluable person full of daring their four children were all born between 1849 and 1855

My unfortunate friend P has lost the thread of his life by the interposition of long intervals of partially disordered reason The past and present are jumbled together in his mind in a manner often productive of curious results and which will be better understood after the perusal of the following letter than from any description that I could give The poor fellow without once stirring from the little whitewashed iron grated room to which he alludes in his first paragraph is nevertheless a great traveller and meets in his wanderings a variety of personages who have long ceased to be visible to any eye save his own In my opinion all this is not so much a delusion as a partly wilful and partly involuntary sport of the imagination to which his disease has imparted such morbid energy that he beholds these spectral scenes and characters with no less distinctness than a play upon the stage and with somewhat more of illusive credence Many of his letters are in my possession some based upon the same vagary as the present one and others upon hypotheses not a whit short of it in absurdity The Vision of the Fountain - Publishing People Series Nathaniel

Hawthorne,2020-10-21 At fifteen I became a resident in a country village more than a hundred miles from home The morning after my arrival a September morning but warm and bright as any in July I rambled into a wood of oaks with a few walnut trees intermixed forming the closest shade above my head The ground was rocky uneven overgrown with bushes and clumps of young saplings and traversed only by cattle paths The track which I chanced to follow led me to a crystal spring with a border of grass as freshly green as on May morning and overshadowed by the limb of a great oak One solitary sunbeam found its way down and played like a goldfish in the water
