a woman who is nine years his senior while helping to raise her three boys with the oldest being only nine years younger than he is With no prior parenting experience and with no point of reference to ask or Google he is forced to rely on blind ambition and his childlike faith in God who at this point has fought most of His battles for him However he has unintentionally put himself in an awkward crossroad where he now has to put away childlike things and become a man much before he was ready to do so With the hope that love would always keep them together TJ and his newfound family within a span of ten years will experience the ups and downs of raising three children whom he did not create multiple job changes two tragic and untimely deaths marital infidelity a house fire that took more than just their personal belongings extreme financial hardship unimaginable betrayal and being introduced to a world that until now had no name And just when it appeared their marriage was coming to an end TJ finds the true love of his life whom he is unable to have Stepping into Accountability is not a self help book nor is it a book that tells you how to be a better stepparent Instead it is a book of a very personal and oftentimes unimaginable journey filled with broken promises unrelenting pain heartache poor decision making unrealistic expectations and unforgivable betrayal What TJ didn't learn in high school or during his brief stint in college he acquired in the school of hard knocks All he knew was that he now had four other people whom he has known only for three months depending on him for parenting nurturing and whatever is needed to the very best of his ability Throughout the course of this journey he will eventually come to realize why they call it step parenting
