Health And Health Care In Later Life:

The Legacy of Longevity Sidney M. Stahl, 1990-10 Published in Cooperation with the Midwest Council for Social Research on Aging Improved standards of living coupled with advancements in medical technology have enhanced much of the populations opportunities for living long and productive lives But what are the implications for living longer Is living longer necessarily the best thing for the individual And what about the quality of that life In this insightful volume leading figures in social gerontology present state of the art research on health and longevity They discuss such consequential topics as health promotion and disease prevention supply and demand for social and medical services governmental and community response to needs and effects of gender and ethnicity on health and life circumstances In addition they provide a sound basis for understanding the theoretical questions and empirical findings of a growing and multifaceted field The Legacy of Longevity is an excellent resource for anyone wishing to understand the health and social implications of an aging population

Administrators and policymakers will find its practical information useful in planning and implementing programs to improve the health and social well being of older persons Address es a variety of topics pertinent to the health care of older adults including conceptualizing and measuring health social factors associated with becoming sick use of health care services organization and financing of health care services and the interaction of the system with the individual Recommended for upper level undergraduate and graduate students Choice This book provides intelligent discussion of the important issues in health care and health policy for elderly people today The authors expertise in setting out their arguments clearly is obvious and the outcome is an inspired presentation of what could appear to be a dull topic It should become a key text for the specialist readers Journal of Advanced Nursing Purely as a work of reference the book is very useful But it is more than that There is no shortage of fresh insights or of controversial positions the authors on the whole do not get bogged down in the minutiae of their findings or the findings of others but set them in context and discuss them with concern and enthusiasm The editor is to be congratulated on the way in which he has assembled and balanced the various contributions successfully weathering the perils of overlap and repetition Ageing in Society The Legacy of Longevity is a multiauthor collaborative effort full of information bound to be of interest to serious students educators and practitioners in the fields of aging It provides a comprehensive overview of state of the art research on health and longevity as these relate to social issues Pride Institute of Long Term Home Health Care

Health and Health Care in Later Life Christina R. Victor, 1991 One of the most potent images of later life is the general association between age and ill health The stereotype of later life is that it is characterized by universal and inevitable ill health The ageing of the population is therefore regarded as problematic because of the high consumption of health and social care by older people These two issues the health status of older people and the provision of health and social care are addressed in this volume The first section of the book presents an overview of the physical and mental health in later life It also addresses the health beliefs and behaviour of older people The second section of the book describes current patterns of health and social care utilization by older people and concludes with a discussion of how these may be affected by recent policy changes in Britain Health and Health Care Utilization in Later Life Jon Hendricks, 2019-04-04 The debate over national health insurance has renewed attention on the health and health care utilization of the elderly Few questions have been more poignant than the health of the United States elderly As a broad ranging critical look Health and Health Care Utilization in Later Life brings the central questions facing the elderly into bold relief It spans the range of health concerns the elderly face daily The debates over health care rage often without having the relevant facts Health and Health Care Utilization in Later Life brings the facts to the fore but just as importantly it brings a sensitive feeling for the realities of health as a driving force in the daily lives of old people Age as an Equality Issue Sandra Fredman, Sarah Spencer, 2003-07 Until recently age discrimination attracted little social opprobrium However ageism has now been thrust onto the equality agenda by the spectre of an ageing population This has led to a range of policies on active ageing Most importantly legally binding legislation prohibiting age discrimination in employment will need to be in place by 2006 Remarkably little attention has been paid to the key issues To what extent is age inevitably linked with declining capacity What are the central aims of a policy on age equality and how can these be realised in law How should law and policy address age discrimination in health education and employment What lessons can be learned from the US and Europe And should young people be dealt with in the same way as older people This book answers these questions in a series of chapters by experts from a wide range of disciplines It begins by examining the nature of the ageing process and then turns to a detailed analysis of the concept of age equality In the light of this analysis the following three chapters critically assess employment education and health A separate chapter is devoted to discrimination against children The last two chapters consider the experience in the US and other European countries Researching Later Life and Ageing Miranda Leontowitsch, 2016-11-09 This collection on researching later life and ageing critically reflects upon the qualitative methods used in gaining knowledge of under researched groups of older people and sets out future research agendas The Patient as Agent of Health and Health Care Mark Sullivan, MD, PhD, 2016-12-15 Proposals for patient centered care for chronic illness have not understood or incorporated the capacity of patients to be active agents of health and health care Patients can not only make treatment choices but help define their clinical problem and its resolution This book examines patient action as the principal path to health and an essential component of it Learning in Later Life Trish Hafford-Letchfield, 2016-06-17 Within the UK and Europe government legislation and policies concerned with demography have asserted a paradigmatic shift towards the increased engagement of older people with public services The philosophy of user involvement and co production within these contexts has become integral to finding ways in which to improve the wellbeing of older people and their experiences of ageing well Whilst this area has been steadily emerging within the educational field in relation to the lifelong learning of older people there has been a relative under theorization and a lack of empirical research however into the lifelong learning needs opportunities and experiences of those older people using social care who are typically marginalized from these debates and developments This book address this gap by paying specific attention to examining what opportunities might be present within care services and public services in general for older people using social care to capitalize on the skills and knowledge they might need to achieve more person centred support Through developing a debate and argument for the convergence of the lifelong learning agenda with social policy and social care its core argument focusses on the challenge of sustainability of the care and support of older people The author explores how social care could engage more meaningfully with concepts such as social capital and the challenges associated with achieving a genuine co productive approach towards the quality of experience of older people using social care This book will be an essential read for professionals working with older people in health and social care as well as those engaged with gerontology and ageing studies in education and practice

Loving Later Life Frits de Lange, 2015-04-27 Is loving later life possible In our youth obsessed culture nobody enjoys growing old We normally fear our own aging and generally do not love old people they remind us that death is inescapable the body frail and social status transitory In Loving Later Life Frits de Lange shows how an ethics of love can acknowledge and overcome this fear of aging and change our attitude toward the elderly De Lange reframes the biblical love command this way We must care for the aging other as we care for our own aging selves We can encourage positive self love by embracing life as we age taking good care of our own aging bodies staying good friends with ourselves and valuing the last season of life When we cultivate this kind of self love we are released from our aversion to growing old and set free to care about others who are aging our parents our relatives and others in their final season of life

Recent Advances in Digital System Diagnosis and Management of Healthcare Kamran Sartipi, Thierry Edoh, 2021-02-03 Technologically supported healthcare management is beginning to take center stage as advances occur in many aspects of healthcare involving big data artificial intelligence and improved user interfaces This volume provides a perspective on a number of such advances ranging from homecare with remote network support and primary homecare to telemedicine application for pediatric cardiology A special section with chapters on Clinical Decision Support Systems CDSS addresses topics in improved human interfaces intelligent support for better quality home and institutional care effective big data visualization for decision makers and gathering data from multiple sources to support the battle against resistant bacteria Desexualisation in Later Life Paul Simpson, Paul Reynolds, Trish Hafford-Letchfield, 2021-07-19 Despite evidence of a more sexually active third age ageing and later life 50 are still commonly represented as a process of desexualisation Challenging this assumption and ageist stereotypes this interdisciplinary volume investigates the experiential and theoretical landscapes of older people's sexual intimacies practices and pleasures Contributors explore the impact of desexualisation in various contexts and across different identities orientations relationships and practices This enlightening text reflecting international scholarship considers how we can distinguish the real challenges faced by older people from the prejudices imposed on them Migration, Illness and Healthcare Jenny Altschuler, 2016-06-30 Forces such as political conflict globalisation and the growth of the internet offering news of life elsewhere mean levels of migration are higher now than at any other time in history Despite the signing of a number of legally binding international treaties that seek to guarantee health care for migrants there is still a considerable gap between government commitments and the reality of everyday life As levels of migration continue to increase it is essential for health care professionals to consider the differing needs of migrants in order to provide them with quality care Informed by systemic theory and drawing on the author's extensive clinical as well as personal experience this timely book explores the limited existing information about migrants health care experiences Providing a comprehensive insight into a worldwide issue this is an essential guide for health care students professionals and policy makers Gender, Women's Health Care Concerns and Other Social Factors in Health and Health Care Jennie Jacobs Kronenfeld, 2018-09-18 This book analyses micro level gender issues and other social factors impacting macro level health care systems Examining the health and health care issues of patients and providers of care both in the United States and in other countries chapters focus on linkages to policy and population concerns as ways to meet global health care needs Quality of sexual and reproductive health care: strengths, gaps, and challenges for midwifery care Ramon Escuriet, Lorena Binfa, Loreto Pantoja, 2025-02-18 Poor quality of sexual and reproductive care SRC persists despite countries commitments to international conferences The challenges posed by the COVID 19 pandemic reversed trends in maternal and neonatal mortality and contraception rates increasing unmet family planning needs and gender based violence Evidence shows that midwifery care has made an essential contribution to the development of high quality services in maternal and childcare The introduction of midwifery professionals trained according to international standards and integrated into the health system can provide around 90% of primary health care for women and newborns including family planning These skilled professionals can save lives and improve the health and well being of women and newborn infants at a scale unmatched by other health interventions Evidence identified 56 outcomes improved by the full scope of midwifery The weight of sexual and reproductive health on general health and wellbeing has a greater impact on women particularly those that are neglected to receive high quality SRC Providing high quality SRC demands more humanized and integrated efficient and effective services with a greater emphasis on quality both from a technical perspective and from the user experience Despite all the efforts the quality of SRC is still a challenge globally research is needed to identify best practices addressing quality care tailored to individuals implementation of models of care that enhance both well being and safety optimization of physiological processes during childbirth as well as validation of outcomes measures
