Health Canada's Women's Health Strategy:

East-West Review of Social Policy, 1995      Women's Health Strategy, 2000 This document sets out Health Canada's Women's Health Strategy and the rationale for it. It reviews some of the ways in which the health system has failed to respond adequately to women's health needs and concerns. It highlights issues surrounding causes of death among women, their illnesses and life conditions, quality of life and the social and economic factors that influence their health. Finally, it outlines a broad range of areas where Departmental actions can address these issues.      Womens [i.e. Women's] Health Strategic Plan Central Coast Area Health Service (N.S.W.), 1995      Rural, Remote and Northern Women's Health : Policy and Research Directions : Final Summary Report McPhedran, Marilou, Sutherns, Rebecca, Haworth-Brockman, Margaret, Centres of Excellence for Women's Health Program, 2004. In response to widespread interest in the health issues of rural, remote and northern populations in Canada, calls for more systematic and applied rural health research and the virtual invisibility of gender analysis in current rural health policy and research, the Centres of Excellence for Women's Health (CEWH) developed a national study entitled Rural and Remote and Northern Women's Health Policy and Research Directions. Its purpose was to combine the knowledge of women living in rural and remote areas of Canada with that of community organizations and researchers to develop a policy framework and research agenda on rural and remote women's health in Canada. The results of the study reported here reflect investment in a highly consultative process to produce clear, achievable goals for change based on the knowledge of women who have built their lives in rural, remote and northern Canada.
