From Rhetoric To Action State Progress In Restructuring The Education System:

From Rhetoric to Action Gerry Feinstein, 1991 The nation's Governors resolved to lead restructuring efforts in their states as part of their commitment to achieve the national education goals by the year 2000. States are experimenting with a range of approaches to restructuring depending on their resources, demographics, governance structures, and traditions. This report describes states' progress in restructuring education at the beginning stages. The first section discusses what restructuring means and how states are meeting the challenge of linking together changes in several parts of the system. The report then looks at examples of strategies under way and progress in overcoming major barriers. Among the lessons learned from recent state experience is that states must create strategies for sustaining commitment beyond policymakers' terms of office. Appendices contain the following: 1. national education goals and objectives; 2. restructuring frameworks; and 3. a brief overview of the approach each state has taken to improve its education system. From A Nation at Risk to No Child Left Behind Maris Vinovskis, 2015-04-17 Distinguished historian and policy analyst Maris Vinovskis examines federal K-12 education policies beginning with the publication of A Nation at Risk and focusing on the National Education Goals, America 2000 Goals 2000, and No Child Left Behind. In addition to discussing key policy debates, he also addresses the practical aspects of implementing and evaluating school and classroom reforms, drawing on his unique experiences working in the Department of Education during both the George H. W. Bush and Bill Clinton administrations.

The Practice of Assessment in Music Education Frank Abrahams, 2010 School Change Models and Processes Marshall Sashkin, John Egermeier, 1993 This report examines a 30-year history of educational change to identify differing perspectives, strategies, and useful principles. The three most influential perspectives in educational change are the rational/scientific perspective, which proposes that change is created through the dissemination of innovative techniques; the political perspective, which generates change through legislation and other directives outside the school district; and the cultural perspective, which seeks improvement through value changes in organizations. There are four strategies for implementing change: fix the parts, fix the people, fix the schools, and fix the system. Systemic education reform offers new hope because it brings together the technical knowledge needed for improvement with a locally sensitive education strategy. Through the Goals 2000 Initiative, the U.S. Department of Education supports reform efforts within the framework of the six National Education Goals. The Department and the Office of Educational Research and Improvement support standards-based assessment techniques. They also assist states in developing curriculum frameworks and help disseminate sound research and practice-based knowledge. A reference bibliography, illustrative programs, and additional sources are included. JPT

Roadmap to Restructuring David T. Conley, 1993 Designed as a guide for practitioners this book draws on over 600 sources to discuss school restructuring definitions trends and issues achievements of a few select schools and implementation techniques and strategies Two overarching indirectly stated issues pervading the reconceptualization of schooling are multiculturalism and a caring school staff The book is organized into four parts Part 1 Rationale and Context presents a historical context for restructuring and a summary of the current motivations for and implications of educational restructuring Part 2 Changing Roles and Responsibilities examines the evolution of new roles for essentially all the groups that participate in public education Part 3 Dimensions of Restructuring explores the concepts of incremental and discontinuous change and extensively discusses current school restructuring activities along 12 dimensions learner outcomes curriculum instruction assessment learning environment technology school community relations time schedules governance teacher leadership personnel definitions and roles and working relationships Part 4 Process of Restructuring captures the lessons being learned about the restructuring process and presents examples of strategies and techniques Contains over 600 references MLH

International Handbook of Educational Policy Nina Bascia, Alister Cumming, Amanda Datnow, Kenneth Leithwood, David Livingstone, 2008-05-14 Nina Bascia Alister Cumming Amanda Datnow Kenneth Leithwood and David Livingstone This Handbook presents contemporary and emergent trends in educational policy research in over 40 chapters written by nearly ninety leading researchers from a number of countries It is organized into five broad sections which capture many of the current dominant educational policy foci and at the same time situate current understandings historically in terms of both how they are conceptualized and in terms of past policy practice The chapters themselves are empirically grounded providing illustrations of the conceptual implications contained within them as well as allowing for comparisons across them The serendipity within chapters with respect to jurisdictional particularities and contexts allows readers to consider not only a range of approaches to policy analysis but also the ways in which policies and policy ideas play out in different times and places The sections move from a focus on prevailing policy tendencies through increasingly critical and outsider perspectives on policy They address in turn the contemporary strategic emphasis on large scale reform substantive emphases at several levels on leadership and governance improving teacher quality and conceptualizing learning in various domains around the notion of literacies and concluding finally with a contrasting topic workplace learning which has had less policy attention and thus allows readers to consider both the advantages and disadvantages of learning and teaching under the bright gaze of policy

Evidence-Based School Counseling Carey Dimmitt, John C. Carey, Trish Hatch, 2007-06-28 Measure the difference you make in students academic career and personal social development Today's school counselors are under enormous pressure to document their effectiveness by using data and producing quantitative accountability reports whether or not they've had the appropriate training. This authoritative guide from highly respected counselor educators and trainers gives preservice and inservice school counselors the tools to knowledgeably identify evidence-based practices in their field and to use data in designing, implementing, and evaluating programs and interventions. Evidence-Based School Counseling provides a practical process for using evidence to determine three critical issues: what needs to be done, which interventions should be implemented, and whether or not the interventions are effective. Aligned with the American School Counselor Association's National Model, this resource offers counselors skill-building guidelines for selecting, collecting, and analyzing data for informed planning; carrying out action research and building collaborative partnerships; measuring student learning and behavior change; communicating results to stakeholders; and more. As counselors successfully incorporate data-based decision making and program planning into their work, they will witness positive academic and personal changes in the lives of their students.

History and Educational Policymaking Maris A. Vinovskis, 2008-10-01 In this book, an eminent scholar and policymaker analyzes the lessons history can teach those who wish to reform the American educational system. Maris Vinovskis begins by tracing the evolving role of the federal government in educational research, providing a historical perspective at a time when there is some movement to abolish the U.S. Department of Education. He then focuses on early childhood education, exploring trends in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. He examines the troubling history of the Follow Through Program, which existed from 1967 to 1994, to help Head Start children make the transition into regular schools, and he reviews the development of the Even Start Program, which works to improve the literacy of disadvantaged parents while providing early childhood education for their children. He discusses changing views toward the economic benefits of education and critically assesses the validity and usefulness of the idea of systemic or standards-based reform. Finally, he develops a conceptual framework for mapping and analyzing education research and reform activities. Next Steps for Children and Families United States. Raising the Educational Achievement of Secondary School Students: Summary of promising practices, 1995 The Condition of Education in Rural Schools Joyce D. Stern, 1994 This report focuses on the status of rural education and is intended to provide information to education researchers, policymakers at the federal and state levels, as well as others concerned about issues in rural education. Specifically, the goal is to increase federal policymakers' attention to rural education problems, promote improvements in rural schools, and stimulate further research on rural education. This report documents how rural conditions are sufficiently different from urban ones to warrant being examined independently, and it endorses the hypothesis that a single set of public policies may not adequately address educational issues in rural versus urban settings. National data, mainly from surveys by the National Center for Education Statistics, are synthesized, covering the following topics: 1. economic and demographic context of rural education; 2. location and characteristics of rural schools; and school districts 3 relationship between the rural school and its community 4 policies and programs benefiting rural education 5 profiles of educators in rural schools 6 effects of education reform in rural schools 7 public school finance policies and practices affecting rural schools 8 assessment of student performance in rural schools 9 education and work experiences of rural youth and 10 the future of rural education The report contains numerous data tables and a section describing statistical data sources and methodology LP Coordination Among Schools, Families, and Communities

Rhodes, 2012-04-21 Since the early 1990s the federal role in education exemplified by the controversial No Child Left Behind Act NCLB has expanded dramatically Yet states and localities have retained a central role in education policy leading to a growing struggle for control over the direction of the nation s schools In An Education in Politics Jesse H Rhodes explains the uneven development of federal involvement in education While supporters of expanded federal involvement enjoyed some success in bringing new ideas to the federal policy agenda Rhodes argues they also encountered stiff resistance from proponents of local control Built atop existing decentralized policies new federal reforms raised difficult questions about which level of government bore ultimate responsibility for improving schools Rhodes s argument focuses on the role played by civil rights activists business leaders and education experts in promoting the reforms that would be enacted with federal policies such as NCLB It also underscores the constraints on federal involvement imposed by existing education policies hostile interest groups and above all the nation s federal system Indeed the federal system which left specific policy formation and implementation to the states and localities repeatedly frustrated efforts to effect changes national reforms lost their force as policies passed through iterations at the state county and municipal levels Ironically state and local resistance only encouraged civil rights activists business leaders and their political allies to advocate even more stringent reforms that imposed heavier burdens on state and local governments Through it all the nation s education system made only incremental steps toward the goal of providing a quality education for every child Science for All Americans F.
