Business of the Heart John Corrigan, 2023-04-28 The Businessmen's Revival was a religious revival that unfolded in the wake of the 1857 market crash among white middle class Protestants. Delving into the religious history of Boston in the 1850s, John Corrigan gives an imaginative and wide-ranging interpretive study of the revival's significance. He uses it as a focal point for addressing a spectacular range of phenomena in American culture: the ecclesiastical and business history of Boston, gender roles and family life, the history of the theater and public spectacle, education, boycott culture, and especially ideas about emotion during this period. This vividly written narrative recovers the emotional experiences of individuals from a wide array of little-used sources including diaries, correspondence, public records, and other materials. From these sources, Corrigan discovers that for these Protestants, the expression of emotion was a matter of transactions. They saw emotion as a commodity and conceptualized relations between people and between individuals and God as transactions of emotion governed by contract. Religion became a business relation with God, with prayer as its legal tender. Entering this relationship, they were conducting the business of the heart. This innovative study shows that the revival, with its commodification of emotional experience, became an occasion for white Protestants to underscore differences between themselves and others. The display of emotion was a primary indicator of membership in the Protestant majority, as much as language, skin color, or dress style. As Corrigan unravels the significance of these culturally constructed standards for emotional life, his book makes an important contribution to recent efforts to explore the links between religion and emotion and is an important new chapter in the history of religion.

The Businessmen's Revival was a religious revival that unfolded in the wake of the 1857 market crash among white middle class Protestants. It is free to read at Oxford Scholarship Online and offered as a free PDF download from OUP and selected open access locations. This monograph uses a medieval Arabic chronicle, the Chronicle of Seert, as a window into the Christian history of Iraq. The Chronicle describes events that are unknown from other sources, but it is most useful for what it tells us about the changing agendas of those who wrote history and their audiences in the period c. 400-800. By splitting the Chronicle into its constituent layers Philip Wood presents a rich cultural history of Iraq He examines the Christians self presentation as a church of the martyrs and the uncomfortable reality of close engagement with the Sasanian state The history of the past was used as a source of solidarity in the present to draw together disparate Christian communities But it also represented a means of criticising figures in the present whether these be secular rulers or over mighty bishops and abbots The Chronicle gives us an insight into the development of an international awareness within the church in Iraq Christians increasingly raised their horizons to the Roman Empire in the West which offered a model of Christian statehood while also being the source of resented theological innovation or heresy It also shows us the competing strands of patronage within the church between laymen and clergy church and state centre and periphery Building on earlier scholarship rooted in the contemporary Syriac sources Wood complements that picture with the testimony of this later witness The Missionary Chronicle ,1839 Who's who in America ,1912 Commercial and Financial Chronicle Bankers Gazette, Commercial Times, Railway Monitor and Insurance Journal ,1887 The New Tablet of Memory; Or, Chronicle of Remarkable Events; with the Dates of Inventions and Discoveries in the Arts and Sciences; and Biographical Notices, Etc.
