Plants as Persons Matthew Hall, 2011-05-06 Plants are people too No but in this work of philosophical botany Matthew Hall challenges readers to reconsider the moral standing of plants arguing that they are other than human persons Plants constitute the bulk of our visible biomass underpin all natural ecosystems and make life on Earth possible Yet plants are considered passive and insensitive beings rightly placed outside moral consideration As the human assault on nature continues more ethical behavior toward plants is needed Hall surveys Western Eastern Pagan and Indigenous thought as well as modern science for attitudes toward plants noting the particular resources for plant personhood and those modes of thought which most exclude plants The most hierarchical systems typically put plants at the bottom but Hall finds much to support a more positive view of plants Indeed some indigenous animisms actually recognize plants as relational intelligent beings who are the appropriate recipients of care and respect New scientific findings encourage this perspective revealing that plants possess many of the capacities of sentience and mentality traditionally denied them Encyclopedia of Religious and Spiritual Development Elizabeth M.
