

The Five Phases of the Fur Trade

Phase 1: The British and French both fished off the east coast of Canada. There, they met the Mi'kmaq people and started trading with them.

Phase 2: The French established New France and they traded with the First Nations around the great lakes and St. Lawrence River.

Phase 3: Britain set up the Hudson's Bay Company (HBC). New Britain and France were both competing for the fur trade.

Phase 4: The North West Company (NWC) took over the French fur trade. Both the HBC and the NWC were competing, and moved west where the supply of beavers was greater.

Phase 5: Britain got the HBC and the NWC to merge into the RBC, which traded across Canada.

From Fur Trade to Free Trade : Rethinking the Inland Empire Susan L. (Susan Lee) Bradbury, Daniel E. Turbeville, Canada. Embassy (U.S.), Canadian Studies Grant Programs, 1997 Fur Trade to Free Trade Randall White, 1989-03-01 In November 1988 the Canadian electorate voted to proceed with the Canada U S Trade Agreement Yet this historic decision is not the end of the process In effect it sets the stage for further discussion since a great deal remains open to negotiation over the next five to seven years Fur Trade to Free Trade examines both the strengths and weaknesses of the current agreement arguing that Canada has to be ready to stand up to the Americans and even risk abrogation of the deal as the details of this highly open ended treaty are resolved Equally important it argues that there are lessons to be learned from history this is only the latest step in a long and often complicated relationship between Canada and the United States The book also examines Canada s relationships with other major trading partners as the entire global village restructures to meet the challenges of a new century The second edition of this Dundurn best seller includes an additional chapter updating events since the book s first publication in June 1988 including a review of the 1988 election the most recent international trade figures and an analysis of developing trends as the implementation stage of the agreement begins to unfold

Decision at Midnight Michael Hart, Colin Robertson, 1995 On 2 January 1988 Canada and the United States signed what was then the most comprehensive free trade agreement that the world has seen Decision at Midnight is the story of the FTA negotiations themselves the preparations for and conduct of those negotiations and the ideas and issues behind them From their unique perspective as participants Hart Dymond and Robertson capture the drama and the personalities involved in the long struggle to make a free trade deal They describe the extensive consultations the turf fighting among insiders the innate caution of both politicians and bureaucrats and the need to cultivate powerful constituencies in order to overcome the inertia of conventional wisdom Although they tell the story from a Canadian perspective the authors also include their perception of what was taking place in the United States and the wider world to create the circumstances that would make the negotiations desirable possible and ultimately successful Throughout they skilfully mix personalities events and issues to provide a compelling narrative and convincing analysis Fur Trade Review Weekly, 1908 Hidden in Plain Sight Cora J. Assembly,1908 Work, Class, and Power in the Borderlands of the Early American Pacific Evan Lampe,2013-12-12 This book traces the history of working people who helped established the foundation of the American empire in the Pacific from its origins after the American Revolution to its coming of age in the 1840s and 1850s Beginning with the expeditions of the Columbia and the Lady Washington Lampe argues that the early American Pacific can best be considered through the interaction of four major locations connected through the networks of trade the merchant ship the Northwest Coast Honolulu and Canton Guangzhou In each of these locations the labors of a diverse population of working people was harnessed in the critical labors of empire building including the transportation of goods The central question that the consideration of working people in the Pacific economy during this period is Lampe argues the role of power applied on these laborers by an international capitalist class emerging alongside the Pacific commercial empires Lampe also finds that this power was not uncontested and emerged in response to the activities of labor Working people on the ship and in the port cities found ways to secure their piece of the profitable trade often through illicit means The British Empire Jane Samson,2001-06-22 The phenomenon of imperialism has never been under such intense scrutiny by such a wide range of academic disciplines as it is today From cultural studies to the history of science academics are engaged in a series of debates about empire which move far beyond traditional preoccupations with metropolitan strategy economics and rivalry Using primary and secondary documentary sources this reader negotiates the many trends and concerns in recent debates to provide a broad based comparative history of the British Empire Selected readings are presented within a chronological framework from the origins of empire to decolonization and beyond Samson adopts a theme of identity to explore different perspectives through the sources including metropolitan colonial and indigenous responses General and section introductions explore such issues as the role of economics and religion in imperial expansion and rule how indigenous and Creole populations constructed and expressed their own identities and what changes were wrought by the process of decolonization Bringing together a wide range of documentary evidence this volume allows the varied and vital debates on aspects of imperialism and identity to be seen in the context of the broad history of the British Empire Metis and the Medicine Line Michel Hogue,2015-04-06

Born of encounters between Indigenous women and Euro American men in the first decades of the nineteenth century the Plains Metis people occupied contentious geographic and cultural spaces Living in a disputed area of the northern Plains inhabited by various Indigenous nations and claimed by both the United States and Great Britain the Metis emerged as a people with distinctive styles of speech dress and religious practice and occupational identities forged in the intense rivalries of the fur and provisions trade Michel Hogue explores how as fur trade societies waned and as state officials looked to establish clear lines separating the United States from Canada and Indians from non Indians these communities of mixed Indigenous and European ancestry were profoundly affected by the efforts of nation states to divide and absorb the North American West Grounded in extensive research in U S and Canadian archives Hogue s account recenters historical discussions that have typically been confined within national boundaries and illuminates how Plains Indigenous peoples like the Metis were at the center of both the unexpected accommodations and the hidden history of violence that made the world s longest undefended border
