For over a decade the National Bureau of Economic Research has sponsored the Economics of Aging Program under the direction of David A. Wise. The program addresses issues that affect the well being of individuals as they age and a society that is composed increasingly of older people. Within the next twenty years an unprecedented proportion of Americans will be over sixty five. New research in the economics of aging is an essential element of understanding what the future holds for this aging population. Inquiries in the Economics of Aging presents both empirical papers that consider questions that are fundamental to public policy and more theoretical contributions that lay new groundwork for future research in the economics of aging. Inquiries in the Economics of Aging provides a timely overview of some of the most important questions facing researchers on aging and outlines new techniques and models that may help to answer these questions. This important volume will be of great interest to specialists and policy makers as it paves the way for future analysis. Aging in the United States and Japan Yukio Noguchi, David A. Wise, 2008-04-15

Japanese and American economists assess the present economic status of the elderly in the United States and Japan and consider the impact of an aging population on the economies of the two countries. With essays on labor force participation and retirement housing equity and the economic status of the elderly budget implications of an aging population and financing social security and health care in the 1990s this volume covers a broad spectrum of issues related to the economics of aging. Among the book's findings are that workers are retiring at an increasingly earlier age in both countries and that as the populations age baby boomers in the United States will face diminishing financial resources as the ratio of retirees to workers sharply increases. The result of a joint venture between the National Bureau of Economic Research and the Japan Center for Economic Research this book complements Housing Markets in the United States and Japan 1994 by integrating research on housing markets with economic issues of the aged in the United States and Japan.
