Schooling Citizens Hilary J. Moss, 2010-04-15 While white residents of antebellum Boston and New Haven forcefully opposed the education of black residents their counterparts in slaveholding Baltimore did little to resist the establishment of African American schools Such discrepancies Hilary Moss argues suggest that white opposition to black education was not a foregone conclusion Through the comparative lenses of these three cities she shows why opposition erupted where it did across the United States during the same period that gave rise to public education As common schooling emerged in the 1830s providing white children of all classes and ethnicities with the opportunity to become full fledged citizens it redefined citizenship as synonymous with whiteness This link between school and American identity Moss argues increased white hostility to black education at the same time that it spurred African Americans to demand public schooling as a means of securing status as full and equal members of society Shedding new light on the efforts of black Americans to learn independently in the face of white attempts to withhold opportunity Schooling Citizens narrates a previously untold chapter in the thorny history of America s educational inequality

African American Educators Elizabeth Massie,2014-09-02 Without education it s very difficult to make the most of your talents and abilities But for much of American history black people couldn t get an education In many places it was against the law for slaves to learn to read and write Despite this many brave slaves found a way to learn Some taught themselves Others sneaked to schools held late at night Even after slavery was ended in 1865 African Americans continued to be treated unfairly It was still a struggle for them to get an education African American educators stepped up to make a difference They faced hardship They often worked for very little pay or for no pay at all These educators built schools They taught their students and stood up for equal rights They proved that a person s race has nothing to do with his or her ability Race

Learning While Black Janice E. Hale,2001-12-04 In Learning While Black Janice Hale argues that educators must look beyond the clichés of urban poverty and teacher training to explain the failures of public education with regard to black students Why Hale asks simply are black students not being educated as well as white students Hale goes beyond finger pointing to search for solutions Closing the achievement gap of African American children she writes does not involve better teacher training or more parental involvement The solution lies in the classroom in the nature of the interaction between the teacher and the child And the key she argues is the instructional vision and leadership provided by principals To meet the needs of diverse learners the school must become the heart and soul of a broad effort the coordinator of tutoring and support services provided by churches service clubs fraternal organizations parents and concerned citizens Calling for the creation of the beloved community envisioned by Dr Martin Luther King Jr Hale outlines strategies for redefining the school as the Family and the broader community as the Village in which each child is too precious to be left behind In this book I am calling for the school to improve traditional instructional practices and create culturally salient instruction that connects African American children to academic achievement The instruction should be so delightful that the children love coming to school and find learning to be fun and exciting Janice Hale The Mis-Education of the Negro Carter Godwin
