Instrumental Music Teacher Kerry Boyle, International Society for Music Education (ISME), 2020-09-28 Instrumental teaching in the UK is characterised by a lack of regulation and curriculum whereby individuals can teach with no training or qualification Kerry Boyle explores the way in which individuals who begin teaching can negotiate successful careers in music without formal training Existing studies suggest that individuals in this context have complex understandings of professional identity preferring to identify as musicians or performers rather than teachers even when most of their income is derived from teaching Boyle explores the complex working lives of instrumental teachers in the UK including routes into instrumental teaching and the specific meanings associated with the role and identity of the professional musician for individuals involved in portfolio careers in music Through an examination of the lived experience of instrumental teachers this study highlights the need to revise existing notions of the professional musician to acknowledge contemporary careers in music The resulting insights can be used to inform and enhance existing approaches to careers in music and contribute to career preparation in undergraduate music students *Reflections on Elizabeth A. to offer deeper insights into the mosaic of factors and related experiences that combine to nurture and sometimes hinder advanced musical performance Each of the book's four sections focus on one aspect of music performance and learning musics in higher education and beyond musical journeys and educational reflections performance learning and developing expertise and professionalism Although each chapter within its home section offers a particular focus there is an underlying conception across all the book's contents of the achievability of advanced musical performance and of the important nurturing role that higher education can play particularly if policy and practice are evidence based and draw on the latest international research findings The narrative offers an insight into the world of advanced musicians detailing their learning journeys and the processes involved in their quest for the development of expertise and professionalism It is the first book of its kind to consider performance learning in higher education across a variety of musical genres including classical jazz popular and folk musics The editors have invited an international community of leading scholars and performance practitioners to contribute to this publication which draws on meticulous research and critical practice This collection is an essential resource for all musicians educators researchers and policy makers who share our interest in promoting the development of advanced performance skills and professionalism

Music, Higher Education, and Society David E. Myers, 2025-03-27 This volume asserts that institutional teaching study administration and performance of music should derive from essential goodness the transcendent value embodied in meaning making that is manifest through holistic cognitive creative kinesthetic productive and expressive reality The classical music ecosystem suffers from a legacy of survival rather than flourishing across increasingly diverse audiences among whom personal and shared meaning is the crux of perceived value Myers calls for a renaissance in professional education and practice that embeds rigorous and disciplined adherence to essential goodness as a non negotiable premise Change leadership is essential if classical music and musicians are to offer society the value it deserves through the classical arts and administrators boards funders and artists must adopt attitudes of service to this greater good in order to invite and lead participatory co creative engagement Through critical analysis of the longstanding status quo Myers offers powerful suggestions for change beginning in higher education and flowing through applications across society Contextualizing music higher education within wider ecosystems of teaching and practice this book shows how leaders can embrace strategic change as a positive opportunity and offers new models for addressing contemporary challenges in a mission driven way including preparing musicians for careers and engaging communities
