eHealth Research, Theory and Development Hanneke Kip, Nienke Beerlage-de Jong, Lisette (J.E.W.C.) van Gemert-Pijnen, Robbert Sanderman, Saskia M. Kelders, 2018-05-23. This is the first book to provide a comprehensive overview of the social and technological context from which eHealth applications have arisen, the psychological principles on which they are based, and the key development and evaluation issues relevant to their successful intervention. Integrating how eHealth applications can be used for both mental and physical health issues, it presents a complete guide to what eHealth means in theory as well as how it can be used in practice. Inspired by the principles and structure of the CeHRes Roadmap, a multidisciplinary framework that combines and uses aspects from approaches such as human-centred design, persuasive technology, and business modelling, the book first examines the theoretical foundations of eHealth and then assesses its practical application and assessment. Including case studies, a glossary of key terms, and end-of-chapter summaries, this ground-breaking book provides a holistic overview of one of the most important recent developments in healthcare. It will be essential reading for students, researchers, and professionals across the fields of health psychology, public health, and design technology.

Making Healthcare Care Hugo Letiche, 2008-10-01. In this volume, Hugo Letiche tackles the all-important question: is there care in healthcare? If, as Klaus Krippendorff (2006) argues, meaning is a structured space, a network of expected senses, a set of possibilities that emerges in the use of language, then within the healthcare systems of today, the meaning of care has been defined to be the eradication of a problem. We must recognize that patients do not wish to be regarded merely as a problem requiring eradication. Letiche is opposed to the very idea that complexity reduction can address the humanity of each individual healthcare situation He argues that through narratives and through complexity based social theory the complexity of each individual situation must be transcended through mindful listening and engaged dialogue Letiche suggests that in the absence of such mindfulness the lack of time for true listening and the inability of providers and systems to allow for patients and family to engage in dialogue lies both the roots of the problem and the potential for its solution If complexity theory has a role in the analysis understanding and betterment of social systems then approaches such as the one Letiche undertakes herein will become essential tools of the trade
