Emotions in the Law School Emma Jones, 2019-08-23 Law schools are failing both their staff and students by requiring them to prize reason and rationality and to suppress or ignore emotions

Despite innovations in terms of both content and teaching techniques there is little evidence that emotions are effectively acknowledged or utilised within legal education. Instead law schools are clinging to an out dated and erroneous perception of emotions as at best irrational and at worst dangerous. In contrast to this educational and scientific developments have demonstrated that emotions are a fundamental inescapable part of learning teaching and skills development. Harnessing these emotions will therefore have a transformative effect on legal education and enable it to adapt to the needs and demands of the twenty first century. This book provides a theoretical overview of the role played by emotions in all aspects of the life of the law school. It explores the relationship emotions have with key traditional and contemporary approaches to legal education the ways in which emotions can be conceptualised their interaction with the politics and policies of legal education and their role within teaching and learning. The book also considers the importance of emotional wellbeing for both law students and legal academics. Overall this book argues for a more holistic form of legal education in which emotions play a valuable and valued role. This requires a new vision for law schools in which emotions are acknowledged and embedded at all levels institutional and personal.

Jesus' Emotions in the Fourth Gospel Stephen Voorwinde, 2005-11-01 This book seeks to discuss John's references to Jesus emotions in the light of the current debate regarding Johannine Christology The Fourth Gospel refers to Jesus love joy and zeal At times it also portrays him as troubled deeply moved and in tears Do these expressions of emotion underscore Jesus humanity or his divinity The study is set against the background of the emotions of God as found in earlier Jewish literature as well as against that of the emotions of Jesus in the Synoptics and the remainder of the New Testament Voorwinde argues that the covenant provides the most consistent perspective for viewing both the emotions of Yahweh in the Old Testament and the emotions of Jesus in the Gospels The Johannine Jesus is found to fulfil the hitherto incompatible roles of covenant Lord and covenant sacrifice Rather than being expressive only of his humanity Jesus emotions are also found to underscore his divinity This is due to the unique genius of this Gospel with its paradoxical presentation of Jesus whose divinity is manifested most eloquently in his weakness suffering and death Only his tears at the grave of Lazarus can be explained as a human emotion pure and simple All the other emotions because of their strong connections to the cross highlight both Jesus humanity and divinity albeit for various reasons and in highly nuanced ways JSNTS 284

The ^AEmotions in Early Chinese Philosophy Curie Virág, 2017-02-13 In China the debate over the moral status of emotions began around the fourth century BCE when early philosophers first began to invoke psychological categories such as the mind xin human nature xing and emotions qing to explain the sources of ethical authority and the foundations of knowledge about the world Although some thinkers during this period proposed that human emotions and desires were temporary physiological disturbances in the mind caused by the impact of things in the world this was not the account that would eventually gain currency The consensus among those thinkers who would come to be recognized as the foundational figures of the Confucian and Daoist philosophical traditions was that the emotions represented the underlying dispositional constitution of a person and that they embodied the patterned workings of the cosmos itself Curie Vir g sets out to explain why the emotions were such a central preoccupation among early thinkers situating the entire debate within developments in conceptions of the self the cosmos and the political order She shows that the mainstream account of emotions as patterned reality emerged as part of a major conceptual shift towards the recognition of natural reality as intelligible orderly and coherent The mainstream account of emotions helped to summon the very idea of the human being as a universal category and to establish the cognitive and practical agency of human beings This book the first intensive study of the subject traces the genealogy of these early Chinese philosophical conceptions and examines their crucial role in the formation of ethical political and cultural values in China

The Janus-Face of Language: Where Are the Emotions in Words and the Words in Emotions? Cornelia Herbert, Thomas Ethofer, Andreas J. Fallgatter, Peter Walla, Georg Northoff, 2018-09-28 Language has long been considered independent from emotions In the last few years however research has accumulated empirical evidence against this theoretical belief of a purely cognitive based foundation of language In particular through research on emotional word processing it has been shown that processing of emotional words activates emotional brain structures elicits emotional facial expressions and modulates action tendencies of approach and avoidance probably in a similar manner as processing of non verbal emotional stimuli does In addition it has been shown that emotional content is already processed in the visual cortex in a facilitated manner which suggests that processing of emotional language content is able to circumvent in depth semantic analysis Yet this is only one side of the coin Very recent research putting words into context suggests that language may also construe emotions and that by studying word processing one can provide a window to one's own feelings All in all the empirical observations support the thesis of a close relationship between language and emotions at the level of word meaning as a specific evolutionary achievement of the human species As such this relationship seems to be different from the one between emotions and speech where emotional meaning is conveyed by nonverbal features of the voice But what does this relationship between written words and emotions theoretically imply for the processing of emotional information The present Research Topic and its related articles aim to provide answers to this question This book comprises several experimental studies investigating the brain structures and the time course of emotional word processing Included are studies examining the affective core dimensions underlying affective word processing and studies that show how these basic affective dimensions influence word processing in general as well as the interaction between words feelings and expressive behavior In addition new impetus comes from studies that on the one hand investigate how task sublexical and intrapersonal factors influence emotional word processing and on the other hand extend emotional word processing to the domains of social context and self related processing Finally future perspectives are outlined including research on emotion and language acquisition culture and multilingualism In summary this textbook offers scientists from different disciplines insight into the neurophysiological behavioral and subjective mechanisms underlying emotion and language interactions It gives new impulses to existing theories on the embodiment of language and emotion and provides new ways of looking at emotion cognition interactions
