Portraying the Other Bettina Korte, 2010-06-04 Seminar paper from the year 2007 in the subject English Language and Literature Studies Literature grade 1 7 Bielefeld University English Department course Meeting the Other language English abstract Without Alterity or Diversity life would be a boring monotony To experience new facets of life or society we need help Stereotypes are helpful They give us the possibility to organize our world Everything is put into its place neat and tidy As long as they are an instrument which builds only the base for further recognition and evaluation of human beings they are useful When they become our only source of getting acquainted with other human beings when they are fixed and immobile stereotypes become a destructive force A stereotype is a generalization about a person or group of persons We develop stereotypes when we are unable or unwilling to obtain all of the information we would need to make fair judgments about people or situations In the absence of the total picture stereotypes in many cases allow us to fill in the blanks Our society often innocently creates and perpetuates stereotypes but these stereotypes often lead to unfair discrimination and persecution when the stereotype is unfavorable Gary M Grobman Stereotype as a general term shows a clear ambiguity therefore I want to categorize them into positive and negative stereotypes Positive is the one which is a first means of evaluation without prejudices and with good intentions negative is the one which is the only means of prejudicial evaluation It is easier to learn and experience novelties when there is a kind of guiding light The following pages will show that learning with open eyes and sympathy for the Other first needs stereotypes Two different parts can be correlated Sometimes even if two similar but slightly different parts merge like Josephs Conrad s goddesses When guidance is needed which is always the case when we encounter new s Newness of life, a series of sermons and addresses William Hay M.H.
