Empty Sleeves Brian Craig Miller, 2015 The Civil War shattered both the flesh and psyche of thousands of soldiers Brian Craig Miller shows how the hospital emerged as the first arena where southerners faced the stark reality of what amputation would mean for men and women and their respective positions in southern society after the war Angiogenesis William D. Figg, Judah Folkman, 2008-05-24 Dr Judah Folkman father of angiogenesis 1933 2008 was the Director of the Vascular Biology Program Andrus Professor of Pediatric Surgery and Professor of Cell Biology at Harvard University's Boston Children's Hospital In the 1971 issue of The New England Journal of Medicine he proposed the theory that tumor growth is angiogenesis dependent This premise was the basis of this field of research and has become the focus of scientists worldwide Because of Folkman's discovery and research the possibilities of antiangiogenic and angiogenic therapy have broadened beyond cancer to many noncancerous diseases This book represents the first collection in a volume of which Dr Folkman is co editor Dr Folkman authored nearly 400 original papers and more than 100 book chapters Dr William Figg is the chief of the Molecular and Clinical Pharmacology Program at the National Cancer Institute National Institutes of Health Over the past 15 years his laboratory and clinic at the NCI have focused on the development of angiogenesis inhibitors Dr Figg has published more than 380 publications The Scars We Carve Allison M. Johnson, 2019-04-10 In The Scars We Carve Bodies and Wounds in Civil War Print Culture Allison M Johnson considers the ubiquitous images of bodies white and black male and female soldier and civilian that appear throughout newspapers lithographs poems and other texts circulated during and in the decades immediately following the Civil War Rather than dwelling on the work of well known authors The Scars We Carve uncovers a powerful archive of Civil War era print culture in which the individual body and its component parts marked by violence or imbued with rhetorical power testify to the horrors of war and the lasting impact of the internecine conflict The Civil War brought about vast changes to the nation's political social racial and gender identities and Johnson argues that print culture conveyed these changes to readers through depictions of nonnormative bodies She focuses on images portrayed in the pages of newspapers and journals in the left handed writing of recent amputees who participated in penmanship contests and in the accounts of anonymous poets and storytellers Johnson reveals how allegories of the feminine body as a representation of liberty and the nation carved out a place for women in public and political realms while depictions of slaves and black soldiers justified black manhood and citizenship in the midst of sectional crisis By highlighting the extent to which the violence of the conflict marked the physical experience of American citizens as well as the geographic and symbolic bodies of the republic The Scars We Carve diverges from narratives of the Civil War that stress ideological abstraction showing instead that the era's print culture contains a literary and visual record of the war that is embodied and individualized , Race and Reunion David W. BLIGHT, 2009-06-30 No historical event has left as deep an imprint on America's collective memory as the Civil War In the war's aftermath Americans had to embrace and cast off a traumatic past
