 University of Auckland Centre for Development Studies course Contemporary Theories of International Development language English abstract The field of development studies has seen an endless coming and going of various new paradigms in the latter half of the 20th century They all claimed to be highly innovative stirring hope that after all the dissatisfactory experiences prior to their emergence the big problems of developing countries can finally be solved A vast body of major theory on development emerged since the 1940s such as Modernisation theory Dependency theory World Systems theory and Neoliberalism with its structural adjustment programmes Chant McIlwaine 2009 In the early to mid 1990s an outraged collection of texts highly critical of all those conventional development approaches emerged In contrast to former controversies these writings were novel in the way that they casted a serious doubt not only on the feasibility but on the very desirability of development itself Escobar 2000 p 11 making use of newly revised poststructuralist and discursive approaches This way of criticism became known as post development According to McGregor 2009 p 2 the most influential and widely read text however was Escobar's 1995 Encountering Development The Making and Unmaking of the Third World This article aims to review this book and is divided into three parts The first section provides a brief summary of the text followed by an analysis dealing with major potential contradictions and their relative insignificance closing with the final part by highlighting the huge and unique impact the book had in the field of development studies and especially in the branch of post development theory

Disrupting Maize Gabriela Méndez Cota, 2016-04-14 Disrupting Maize undertakes a critical interrogation of the symbol and the staple food of the Mexican nation As the centre of origin and genetic diversification of maize the Mexican territory is regarded today as being under threat of irreversible contamination by genetically engineered maize an imported biotechnological product When the first evidences of such contamination were found in 2001 an anti GM movement was born that quickly became articulated as a defence of cultural identity and national sovereignty Disrupting Maize mobilizes contemporary theoretical resources in a critical examination of the cultural politics at work in the Mexican defence of maize From such an examination biotechnological disruption emerges provocatively as constitutive of Mexican nationalism rather than externally imposed to it by corporate players Furthermore it is conceptualized as a gift a promise of a more democratic Mexico

Faith Seeking Conviviality Samuel E. Ewell, 2019-12-30 Faith Seeking Conviviality traces the journey of a U S missionary into Brazil and beyond seeking to be faithfully present while also questioning the default settings of good intentions Taking Ivan Illich as the primary theological guide on that journey Faith Seeking Conviviality narrates the discovery of a renewed imagination for Christian mission that arises as a response to two persistent questions First given the colonial history of Christian missionary expansion on what basis do we go on fulfilling the Great Commission Matt 28 16 20 as Christ's disciples A second question intimately related to the first is What makes it possible to embody a distinctively Christian presence that is missionary without being manipulative In doing theology with and after Ivan Illich Faith Seeking Conviviality does not offer a pull off the shelf model for mission but rather a framework for embodying the incarnational logic of mission that entails a convivial turn delinking missionary discipleship from the lure of techniques and institutional dependence in order to receive and to share the peace of Christ relationally

Globalization and Law Adam

Gearey,2005-07-14 To understand globalized law it is necessary to bring together insights gained from disparate strands of study international political economy economic law human rights law and the law of war Focusing on WTO the UN the World Bank and the IMF Globalization and Law shows how their legal and regulatory regimes are linked to the politics of world markets It also looks at the operation of law and economy at a national level where globalized law can be seen in action Chapters consider the politics of oil and human rights in Nigeria and the invasion and reconstruction of Iraq Other broad themes are also examined Looking at the fate of people in the third world who are the subjects of economic development and development law we can bring to light the power relationships and ideologies that are attendant on the development project In conclusion it is argued that we need to engage with the claims to humanity that lie behind the notion of human rights the war against terrorism and military intervention Globalized law raises fraught questions about the role of international regimes and the interests and values in whose name they claim to operate Delivering Development Edward R.

Carr,2011-02-01 In Delivering Development author Edward Carr calls into question the very universal unquestioned assumptions about globalization development and environmental change that undergird much of development and economic policy Here he demonstrates how commonly held beliefs about globalization and development have failed the global poor Over his 13 years of working along what he calls globalization's shoreline a world region buffeted by the economic political and environmental decisions of those living in wealthier places Carr has concluded that most experts misunderstand what they are trying to fix and cannot tell if they are fixing it Delivering Development is an eye opening you are there book that compels the reader to question conventional wisdom redefines what assistance to the developing world really means and explores alternative ways of achieving meaningful enduring improvements to human well being Elgar Encyclopedia of

Roy-Trudel,2024-11-14 This book draws on a range of theoretical frameworks to challenge the limited conception of subjectivity upon which human rights are based The book focuses on some of the ways in which dominant discourses are in tension with human rights fundamental claim to universality by ignoring multiple ways of being Different theoretical and methodological approaches are used to analyse this creation of exclusions These include Hannah Arendt's figure of the refugee posthumanist critiques and non Western critical theories such as Black Indigenous and decolonial approaches Often these approaches are used in isolation but together they reveal how the dominant concept of subjectivity has always needed an Other and that the human at the heart of human rights is not a universal concept The book also pursues an analysis of visual discourses in the field of international human rights with a focus on the ways in which exclusions are represented and entrenched through the visual It argues that international human rights are based on a vision centred sensorium and certain processes of reasoning that exclude emotions Finally the book considers how international human rights could embrace other forms of thinking and being in the world and recognize different sensory experiences This original perspective on the limits of human rights will appeal to legal theorists socio legal scholars and others working in politics sociology anthropology and cultural studies with an interest in contemporary approaches to social justice and critical approaches Rethinking Urban Transitions Andrés Luque-Ayala, Simon Marvin, Harriet Bulkeley, 2018-03-15 Rethinking Urban Transitions provides critical insight for societal and policy debates about the potential and limits of low carbon urbanism It draws on over a decade of international research undertaken by scholars across multiple disciplines concerned with analysing and shaping urban sustainability transitions It seeks to open up the possibility of a new generation of urban low carbon transition research which foregrounds the importance of political geographical and developmental context in shaping the possibilities for a low carbon urban future The book's contributions propose an interpretation of urban low carbon transitions as primarily social political and developmental processes Rather than being primarily technical efforts aimed at measuring and mitigating greenhouse gases the low carbon transition requires a shift in the mode and politics of urban development The book argues that moving towards this model requires rethinking what it means to design practise and mobilize low carbon in the city while also acknowledging the presence of multiple and contested developmental pathways Key to this shift is thinking about transitions not solely as technical infrastructural or systemic shifts but also as a way of thinking about collective futures societal development and governing modes a recognition of the political and contested nature of low carbon urbanism The various contributions provide novel conceptual frameworks as well as empirically rich cases through which we can begin to interrogate the relevance of socio economic political and developmental dimensions in the making or unmaking of low carbon in the city The book draws on a diverse range of examples including world cities and ordinary cities from North America South America Europe Australia Africa India and China to provide evidence that expectations aspirations and plans to undertake purposive socio technical transitions are both emerging and encountering resistance in different urban contexts Rethinking Urban Transitions is an essential text for courses concerned with cities climate change and environmental issues in sociology politics urban studies planning environmental studies geography and the built environment Nurturing Indonesia Hans Pols, 2018-08-09 This examination of the formation of the Indonesian medical profession reveals the relationship between medicine and decolonisation and its importance to understanding Asian history The Dilemmas of Social Democracies Howard Richards, Joanna Swanger, 2006-01-01 The Dilemmas of Social Democracies seeks to advance the eradication of poverty and the ethical construction of social democracy and sustainable peace Howard Richards and Joanna Swanger argue that the reason that capitalism resists transformation and that social democracy is so hard to achieve is because of the philosophical and institutional underpinnings the constitutive rules of capitalism the book therefore explores the historical origins of these rules their implications for blocking progress toward social justice and how they can

Re-mapping the Americas W. Andy Knight, Julián Castro-Rea, 2016-04-01 Since the end of the Second World War the map of the Americas has changed dramatically Not only were many former European colonies turned into sovereign states there was also an ongoing process of region making recognizable throughout the hemisphere and obvious through the establishment of several regional agreements The emergence of political and economic regional integration blocs is a very timely topic analyzed by scholars in many disciplines worldwide This book looks at remapping the recent trends in region making throughout the Americas in a way that hasn t been at the center of academic analyses so far While examining these regionalisation tendencies with a historical background in mind the authors also answer fundamental questions such as What influences does globalization have on region making both on normative regionalism plans as well as on actual economic political cultural military and social regionalization processes driven by state and non state actors What ideas or interests lead states in the Americas to cooperate or compete with one another and how is this power distributed How do these regional agreements affect trade relations and have there been trade barriers set up to protect national economies What agreements exist or have existed and how did they change with regard to contents and for what reason The book informs academic as well as non academic audiences about regional developments in the Americas in particular those dating back to the last twenty years Beyond the primary purpose of summarizing the hemisphere's recent trends the book also brings clarification in a detailed but easy to understand way about timely issues regarding the institutionalisation or lack thereof of the plethora of regional and sub regional bodies that have emerged in this hemisphere over the past couple of decades
