The Enchantments of Technology Lee Bailey, 2005-09-14 In The Enchantments of Technology Lee Worth Bailey erases the conventional distinction between myth and machine in order to explore the passionate foundations concealed in technological culture and address its complex ethical, moral, and social implications. Bailey argues that technological society does not simply disenchant the world with its reductive methods and mechanical metaphors; then shape machines with political motives but is also borne by a deeper subversive undertow of enchantment. Addressing examples to explore the complexities of these enchantments, his thought is full of illuminating examinations of seductively engaging technologies ranging from the old camera obscura to new automobiles, robots, airplanes, and spaceships. This volume builds on the work of numerous scholars including Jacques Ellul and Jean Brun on the phenomenological and spiritual aspects of technology; Carl Jung on the archetypal collective unconscious approach to myth; and Martin Heidegger on Being itself. Bailey creates a dynamic interdisciplinary postmodern examination of how our machines and their environments embody not only reason but also desires.

House of Faith or Enchanted Forest? Charles W. Hedrick, 2009-01-01 Since the Renaissance of the fourteenth through seventeenth centuries and particularly since the Enlightenment of the eighteenth century, the ancient creeds of faith have been under serious fire, and the struggle has not gone well for popular religion in America. The rapid advances made by the physical sciences in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries and the corresponding reliance on scientific accomplishments in American life have been matched by the growing influence of reason in the way Americans think about religion. Except for pockets of resistance, these developments have negatively influenced the practical role of traditional religion in American life. These essays, published over a twenty-year period as newspaper editorials addressed to the general public, confront popular beliefs and morals with the challenge of human reason. At issue in this meeting of faith and reason is nothing less than the nature of religion in the twenty-first century: Will faith embrace reason to create a House where both dwell in harmony, or will faith ignore the claims of reason and continue to live in an Enchanted Forest? Each essay, written in the practical language of the streets, attempts to dialogue with the general reader and gently provoke critical thinking on sensitive issues of belief. Charles Hedrick is a scholar who has come clean. From the buckle on the Bible Belt comes this honest, intelligent, and creative reflection on the struggle between reason and or science and personal faith. Charlie's reminder to take our personal absolute truths, house of faith, a little less seriously and enjoy the diversity of thought and experience, Enchanted Forest, is practical, powerful, and incredibly timely. Glenna S. Jackson, Professor, Department of Religion and Philosophy at Otterbein College, House of Faith or Enchanted Forest is a personal and lively journey along the path of faith and doubt. Charles Hedrick poses deep questions that for centuries have haunted philosophers, historians, and theologians alike. This book awakens and celebrates critical thinking yet remains warmly accessible and resolutely honest. Anyone who wishes to re-think life's great questions in light of the changing face of Christianity will find joy in reading this book. Here is an excellent resource for discussion groups, book clubs, and inquiring individuals. David Galston, Director of the Eternal Spring Learning Centre, Hamilton, Ontario. Charlie Hedrick asks a lot of questions in this provocative collection of short essays. One specific question that perhaps sums up the others: Can a critical thinker also be a person of traditional religious faith? Spanning a wide range of topics, Hedrick offers readers challenging questions to ponder rather than easy answers to swallow. Yet by pondering such questions, careful readers will find themselves closer to honest answers than they were before they read this helpful book. J. Bradley Chance, Professor and Chair, Department of Religion, William Jewell College.
