Gendered Peace Donna Pankhurst, 2008 This volume contributes to the growing literature on women conflict and peacebuilding by focusing on the moments after a peace accord or some other official ending of a conflict often denoted as e post conflict e tm or e post war e tm Such moments often herald great hope for holding to account those who committed grave wrongs during the conflict and for a better life in the future For many women both of these hopes are often very quickly shattered in starkly different ways to the hopes of men Such periods are often characterized by violence and insecurities and the official ending of a war often fails to bring freedom from sexual violence for many women Within such a context efforts on the part of women and those made on their behalf to hold to account those who commit crimes against them and to access their rights are difficult to make are often dangerous and are also often deployed with little effect Gendered Peace explores international contexts and a variety of local ones in which such struggles take place and

Assets, Livelihoods, and Social Policy Anis A. Dani, Caroline Moser, 2008-05-14 Given the lack of adequate universal social welfare for those unable to find jobs in the salaried formal sector the livelihoods and well being of most poor people depends heavily on their asset base This includes their ability to access and accumulate assets obtain decent returns from these assets and use their asset base to manage risks Assets Livelihoods and Social Policy discusses the diverse strategies adopted by people in different contexts to accumulate assets through migration housing investments natural resources management and informal businesses An asset based social policy can strengthen asset accumulation strategies as well as help the poor overcome the constraints of unfavorable institutional environments To a considerable extent asset accumulation strategies depend on the agency exercised by people themselves through individual or collective action At the same time the status of policies and institutions can enable or hinder these strategies and affect livelihood outcomes In synthesis the case studies lead to the differentiation among three different types of policies policies that affect outcomes by directly influencing access to assets by the poor such as land housing natural resources or credit policies and public investments that change the nature of returns on assets such as investments in rural roads agricultural inputs and market development policies that transform the value of assets held by the poor by virtue of administrative decisions that increase or reduce value such as re classification of land from arable or pasture to protected lands land use regulations affecting resource use or modification in regulations governing labor rights or migration The chapters originally commissioned to re examine major gaps in knowledge and development practice ten years after the Copenhagen Summit on Social Development are authored by leading scholars from economics anthropology sociology geography and development studies This book is part of a new series New Frontiers in Social Policy which examines issues and approaches to extend the boundaries of social policy beyond conventional social services toward policies and institutions that improve equality of opportunity and social justice in developing countries Other titles in the series include Inclusive States Social Policy and Structural Inequalities and Institutional Pathways to Equity Addressing Inequality Traps
