Papadopoulos,1992      Spiritualism and the Foundations of C. G. Jung's Psychology F.

X. Charet,1993-01-01 Charet uncovers some of the reasons why Jung s psychology finds itself living between science and religion He demonstrates that Jung s early life was influenced by the experiences beliefs and ideas that characterized Spiritualism and that arose out of the entangled relationship that existed between science and religion in the late nineteenth century Spiritualism following its inception in 1848 became a movement that claimed to be a scientific religion and whose controlling belief was that the human personality survived death and could be reached through a medium in trance The author shows that Jung s early experiences and preoccupation with Spiritualism influenced his later ideas of the autonomy personification and quasi metaphysical nature of the archetype the central concept and one of the foundations upon which he built his psychology      C.G. Daniels, 2018-05-01 This book presents the serial killer as having imagopathy that is a disorder of the imagination manifested through such deficiencies as failure of empathy rigid fantasies and unresolved projections The author argues that this disorder is a form of failed alchemy His study challenges long held assumptions that the Jungian concept of individuation is a purely healthful drive Serial killers are unable to form insight after projecting untenable material onto their victims Criminal profilers must therefore effect that insight informed by their own reactions to violent crime scene imagery using what the author asserts is a form of Jung's active imagination This book posits sexual homicides as irrational shadow images in our rationalistic modern culture Consequently profilers bridge conscious and unconscious for the inexorably splintered killer as well as the culture at large      Handbook of Play Therapy, Advances and Innovations Kevin J. The Effective Protagonist in the Nineteenth-Century British Novel Terence Dawson,2016-03-23 The Effective Protagonist in the Nineteenth Century British Novel is an experiment in post Jungian literary criticism and methodology Its primary aim is to challenge current views about the correlation between narrative structure gender and the governing psychological dilemma in four nineteenth century British novels The overarching argument is that the opening situation in a novel represents an implicit challenge facing not the obvious hero heroine but the individual that Terence Dawson defines as the effective protagonist To illustrate his claim Dawson pairs two sets of novels with unexpectedly comparable dilemmas Ivanhoe with The Picture of Dorian Gray and Wuthering Heights with Silas Marner In all four novels the effective protagonist is an apparently minor figure whose crucial function in the ordering of the events has been overlooked Rereading these well known texts in relation to hitherto neglected characters uncovers startling new issues at their heart and demonstrates innovative ways of exploring both narrative and literary tradition

Landscapes of the Psyche Paolo Aite, 2008. This book is the result of research carried out by Paolo Aite who for over thirty years has introduced sandplay in adult analysis into Italy. This method is becoming more and more popular among Jungian analysts both in Italy and abroad in private as well as in public practice. But just what is sandplay in analysis? It is not another kind of therapy. It is preverbal communication through images that goes hand in hand with communication through words. By means of the physical experience of playing with sand and using objects a symbolization of deep emotions is set into motion which speech more closely linked to the defences can only partly express. This is a perspective which brings out the close relationship between words and images and makes it possible to study the transforming moment when emotions take on a visual representation changing the feeling tone of the analytical relationship. Contained in the spatiotemporal organization of the play scene is a precise interpretation through images of the intrapsychic and interpersonal experience shared by the patient and the therapist in the analytical relationship. The purpose of analysis is to succeed in expressing in words the whole transforming potential of the symbolic image which has inspired the play scene and the emotions shared in the analytical relationship. This research which springs from the theoretical hypotheses of Carl Gustav Jung addresses central issues of his thinking which have yet to be thoroughly explored full as they are of potential development both theoretical and clinical.
