Ancient Near Eastern Iconography and the Bible Hans Ulrich Steymans, 2024-10-31 Examines the dilemma of whether ancient Near Eastern images while providing unique aspects of the world views of the cultures from which the Bible arose can be interpreted in a way that traceably relates them to the biblical text To avoid the danger of using images merely as illustrations for concepts found in the Bible one first needs to behold the image with its own right to been seen The essays within this volume describe the methods developed by Othmar Keel for bringing imagery into a dialogue with texts from the ancient Orient and their own interpretation including previously unpublished material from Keel The contributions begin with an overview of the scholarly work of Keel and the development of his aims and methods including a revision of an article dealing with semiology in the interpretation of art The book proceeds to address the research history of iconology in art history presenting the methodology of Erwin Panofsky and one of his influential predecessors Charles Clermont Ganneau in contrast with Keel s three methodological steps leading from iconographic analysis to iconology Contributors then present two case studies of how Keel s method can be applied to interpret Egyptian and Mesopotamian images allowing insights into the worldview of an ancient culture and the aim of iconology The book concludes with a report about how iconographic analysis and iconology is taught on University level and manufacturing techniques indicates that most were made on Delos. Additionally, archival research on unpublished notes from early excavations reveals new data on many figurines in archaeological contexts, illuminating their roles in both domestic and temple cults. The results offer a new perspective on Hellenistic reinterpretations of Egyptian religion as well as the relationship between popular and official cults.

Ancient Egyptian Prisoner Statues Tara Prakash, 2022-10-01 During the Old Kingdom, the ancient Egyptians constructed elaborately decorated mortuary monuments for their pharaohs. By the late Old Kingdom, ca. 2435–2153 BCE, these pyramid complexes began to contain a new and unique type of statue, the so-called prisoner statues. Despite being known to Egyptologists for decades, these statues of kneeling bound foreign captives have been only partially documented, and questions surrounding their use, treatment, and exact meaning have remained unanswered. Ancient Egyptian Prisoner Statues, the first comprehensive analysis of the prisoner statues, addresses this gap, demonstrating that the Egyptians conceived of and used the prisoner statues differently over time as a response to contemporary social, cultural, and historical changes. In the process, the author contributes new data and interpretations on topics as diverse as the purpose and function of the pyramid complex, the ways in which the Egyptians understood and depicted ethnicity, and the agency of artists in ancient Egypt. Ultimately, this volume provides a fuller understanding of not only the prisoner statues but also the Egyptian late Old Kingdom as a whole.

The Egyptian Collection at Norwich Castle Museum Faye Kalloniatis, 2019-08-30 The Egyptian Collection at Norwich Castle Museum represents the first full publication of this important collection, which contains several outstanding objects. Part 1 begins with an outline of the acquisition history of the Egyptian collection and its display within Norwich Castle in 1894, when it was converted from a prison to a museum. The collection was largely acquired between the nineteenth and first part of the twentieth centuries. Its most prominent donor was Flaxman Spurrell, whose varied collection of flints, faience beads and necklaces, as well as Late Antique cloths, was obtained from Sir Flinders Petrie. Also prominent was the Norwich-based Colman family, most notable for its manufacture of mustard, whose collection was purchased in Egypt during the late C19. Also included in this part are essays on several of the museum's outstanding items: Ipu's shroud, a rare early 18th Dynasty example with fragments also held in Cairo; the 22nd Dynasty finely decorated and well-preserved cartonnage and wooden lid of the priest Ankh-hor; and the exceptional model granary of Nile clay, painted with lively scenes, one showing the owner Intef playing senet. Part 2 is a detailed catalogue of the complete collection. It is organised into sections with objects grouped together mainly according to type: stelae, shabtis, scarabs, jewellery, amulets, vessels, flints, lamps, inscribed Book of the Dead fragments, metal figurines, and Late Antique cloths, and also according to function, such as cosmetics, grooming, and architectural furniture elements. The inscribed materials have all been translated, and individual entries give examples or parallels. Seventy colour plates illustrate each object.

Power and Architecture Joachim Bretschneider, Jan Driessen, Karel van Lerberghe, 2007 The idea that societies and rulers express their power through monumental architecture is not a new one, but this collection of essays, the result of a 2002 conference in

Leuven takes the argument back to the very beginnings of monumental architecture in the Bronze Age Near East and Aegean to ask if this process can be linked to a particular World Christianity, Urbanization and Identity, 2021-02-09

World Christianity Urbanization and Identity argues that urban centers particularly the largest cities do not only offer places for people to live shop and seek entertainment but deeply shape people's ethics behavior sense of justice and how they learn to become human Given that religious participation and institutions are vital to individual and communal life particularly in urban centers this interdisciplinary volume seeks to provide insights into the interaction between urban change religious formation and practice and to understand how these shape individual and group identities in a world that is increasingly urban World Christianity Urbanization and Identity is part of the multi volume series World Christianity and Public Religion The series seeks to become a platform for intercultural and intergenerational dialogue and to facilitate opportunities for interaction between scholars across the Global South and those in other parts of the world
