Disaster Management and City Planning

Yasuhisa Mitsui, 2022-08-01 This book first provides a comprehensive guideline for future disaster resistant city planning in large cities in disaster prone countries such as Japan It is a compilation of knowledge and know how obtained through the author's work in the national government for one and half years in the Earthquake Reconstruction Headquarters right after the Great Hanshin Awaji Earthquake on 17 January 1995 The author has carefully examined the various ad hoc measures taken just after the earthquake which were criticized because they did not work as well as expected Additionally he has examined the later revisions in disaster and risk management systems made at the levels of local and national governments through experience in the Hanshin Awaji Earthquake to which the author had long been committed The author argues that the rescue activities rehabilitation and reconstruction plans for disaster countermeasures implemented once a disaster has occurred and the city planning established in ordinary times should be extremely tightly connected with each other City planning that subsumes rescue activities rehabilitation and reconstruction plans against what ought to have happened would critically improve the capability of crisis management and consequently protect life and property once a disaster has occurred Such city planning eventually creates disaster resistant cities This book assumes readers to be graduate students who study city planning It is also beneficial for practitioners and policy makers who are in charge of the construction of disaster resistant cities at the national and local levels of governments especially in disaster prone countries

Asian Cities in an Era of Decentralisation Michelle Ann Miller, Tim Bunnell, 2016-03-16 This book critically engages with the idea of decentralization as empowering cities and their residents to act innovatively and creatively The contributions thus highlight how the term empowerment in the context of decentralization regimes masks a competing array of intentions and agendas Who and what are empowered given a voice and allowed to participate via the processes and structures of decentralization and to what ends are too frequently assumed in normative conversations about bringing government closer to the people and community driven development Creating an illusion of a shared language and common set of priorities therefore obscures more complex realities particularly when there is a disconnect between the official goals of decentralization and civil society aspirations that reinforces politics of exclusion at the grassroots Equally official processes of decentralization can and often are accompanied by less visible processes of recentralization through the reassertion of central state control over putatively autonomous jurisdictions Through studies in six Asian countries India the Philippines Indonesia Bangladesh Thailand and Japan the essays in this book examine cases whereby a range of urban actors and institutions have been empowered via decentralization and how this realignment of local power relations impacts upon the dynamics of urban governance albeit not always in socially progressive ways This book was published as a special issue of Space and Polity      Computational Urban Planning and Management for Smart Cities Stan Geertman, Qingming Zhan, Andrew Allan, Christopher Pettit, 2019-05-09 This book contains a selection of the best articles presented at the CUPUM Computational Urban Planning and Urban Management conference held in the second week of July 2019 at the University of Wuhan China The chapters included were selected based on a double blind review process involving external reviewers
