Literary Labyrinths in Franco-Era Barcelona Colleen P. Culleton, 2016-07-22 Bringing together works by Salvador Espriu Juan Goytisolo Merc Rodoreda Esther Tusquets and Juan Marsa that portray memory as a disorienting narrative enterprise Colleen Culleton argues that the source of this disorientation is the material reality of life in Barcelona in the immediate post Civil War years Barcelona was the object of harsh persecution in the first years of the Franco regime that included the erasure of marks of Catalan identity and cultural history from the urban landscape and made Barcelona a moving target for memory The literature and film she examines show characters struggling to produce narratives of the remembered past that immediately conflict with the dominant version of Spain's historical narrative formulated to legitimize the Civil War Culleton suggests the trope of the laberinto used as an image or device in all five of the works she considers and translated into English as both maze and labyrinth opens up a space that enables readers to take vulnerability to outside interference into account as an inseparable part of remembrance While the narratives all have maze like qualities involving a high level of reader participation and choice the exigencies of the labyrinth with its unicursal demands for patience perseverance and faith always prevail Thus do the Francoist narrative and social structure in the end resurface and reassert themselves over the narrating character's perspective

The "strange Girl" in Twentieth Century Spanish Novels Written by Women Ellen Cecilia Mayock, 2004 With an eye to the rather insular particular development and definition of feminism in Spain the author recognizes that the twentieth century has been a period of great change for peninsular women authors Her study of the creative compromises wrought by severe oppression followed by relative liberation all within the context of Spain's specific religious and regional influences illustrates the unique positioning of these women writers as shown through their female characters. While this is reflection of the current scholarship in Women's Studies examining the feminist resonance of the construction of female identity through texts written by women about women, it is one that is in its first stages of development in Spanish criticism and has been primarily author specific. Ellen C. Mayock's research provides a more panoramic view so to speak, facilitating an overview of progression between trends as opposed to a singular progression of a single author within the context of era, a very positive move that allows for full comprehension.
