Food Editors Hometown Favorites Cookbook American Regional And Local Specialties:

Food Editors' Hometown Favorites Cookbook Barbara Gibbs Ostmann, Jane L. Baker, 1984 This book contains the favorite regional and local recipes from over sixty leading food experts Culinary History of Missouri, A: Foodways & Iconic Dishes of the Show-Me State Suzanne Corbett and Deborah Reinhardt, 2021-09-27 Missouri's history is best told through food from its Native American and later French colonial roots to the country's first viticultural area. Learn about the state's vibrant barbecue culture which stems from African American cooks including Henry Perry, Kansas City's barbecue king. Trace the evolution of iconic dishes such as Kansas City burnt ends, St. Louis gooey butter cake and Springfield cashew chicken. Discover how hardscrabble Ozark farmers launched a tomato canning industry and how a financially strapped widow Irma Rombauer would forever change how cookbooks were written. Historian and culinary writer Suzanne Corbett and food and travel writer Deborah Reinhardt also include more than eighty historical recipes to capture a taste of Missouri's history that spans more than two hundred years.

The Taste of American Place Barbara G. Shortridge, James R. Shortridge, 1999-09-01 Tracing the intertwined roles of food, ethnicity and regionalism in the construction of American identity, this textbook examines the central role food plays in our lives. Drawing on a range of disciplines—including sociology, anthropology, folklore, geography, history and nutrition—the editors have selected a group of engaging essays to help students explore the idea of food as a window into American culture. The editors' general introductory essay offers an overview of current scholarship and part introductions contextualize the readings within each section. This lively reader will be a valuable supplement for courses on American culture across the social sciences.

The Food Section Kimberly Wilmot Voss, 2014-04-24 Food blogs are everywhere today, but for generations information and opinions about food were found in the food sections of newspapers in communities large and small. Until the early 1970s these sections were housed in the women's pages of newspapers where women could hold an authoritative voice. The food editors often a mix of trained journalist and home economist reported on everything from nutrition news to features on the new chef in town. They wrote recipes and solicited ideas from readers. The sections reflected the trends of the time and the cooks of the community. The editors were local celebrities judging cooking contests and getting calls at home about how to prepare a Thanksgiving turkey. They were consumer advocates and reporters for food safety and nutrition. They helped make James Beard and Julia Child household names as the editors wrote about their television appearances and reviewed their cookbooks. These food editors laid the foundation for the food community that Nora Ephron described in her classic 1968 essay The Food Establishment and eventually led to the food communities of today. Included in the chapters are profiles of such food editors as Jane Nickerson, Jeanne Voltz and Ruth Ellen Church who were unheralded pioneers in the field as well as Cecily Brownstone, Poppy Cannon and Clementine Paddleford who are well known today. An analysis of their work demonstrates changes in the country's culinary history. The book concludes with a look at how the women's pages folded at the same time that home economics saw its field transformed and with thoughts about the foundation that these women laid for the food journalism of today
