Food Supply And Economic Development:

Food Supply and Economic Development Galal A. Amin, 2013-11-26 First Published in 1966 The purpose of this book for two fold First to investigate the role played by food supply in economic development and secondly to examine the food problem in the United Arab Republic Egypt Population, Food Supply and Economic Development Max F. Millikan, 1971

Economics of Agricultural Development George W. Norton, Jeffrey Alwang, William A. Masters, 2014-09-25 Economics of Agricultural Development examines the causes severity and effects of poverty population growth and malnutrition in developing countries It discusses potential solutions to these problems progress made in many countries in recent years and the implications of globalization for agriculture poverty and the environment Topics covered in the book include Means for utilizing agricultural surpluses to further overall economic development The sustainability of the natural resource environment Gender issues in relation to agriculture and resource use The contribution of agricultural technologies The importance of agricultural and macroeconomic policies as related to development and trade and the successes and failures of such policies Actions to encourage more rapid agricultural and economic development The globalization of trade in goods services and capital has been fundamental to changes being experienced in the agricultural and rural sectors of developing countries It has major implications for the fight against poverty and food insecurity and for environmental sustainability Recently agriculture has returned to a position of center stage in the development dialog as food price volatility has increased along with water scarcity and concerns grow over the effects of climate change on food supply and food security This new edition of the essential textbook in the field builds on the 2010 edition and reflects the following developments Growth in foreign demand for land and other natural resources Significant progress in agricultural and economic development in some low income countries while others are being left behind Continued growth in demand for higher valued farm products This book is essential reading for undergraduate students seeking to understand the economics of agricultural development and the world food system including environmental and human consequences international trade and capital flows Food Supply and Economic Development in Indonesia, Problems and Prospects Saleh Afiff, 1968 The general purpose of this study is to evaluate the role of agriculture in Indonesia in supplying food to the country s economy Analysis of the general inter relationship between the agricultural and non agricultural sectors of a developing densely populated economy and the sectorial interdependence viewed in relation to the supply and demand for food during the development process provides a general framework of reference for the analysis of the food problems in Indonesia The data originate from two basic sources 1 Primary data from the various institutions involved in and responsible for the food economy in Indonesia Much of these data were collected in Indonesia and in part they were an outgrowth of the writer s work there 2 Secondary data from published sources Use of the food balance sheet shows that the common pattern of the Indonesian diet is characterized by a high starchy staple ratio and staples rice is the most important Through a comparison of these results with the nutritional standards calculated on the basis of methods suggested by the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations the nutritional status of the Indonesian people is evaluated By both qualitative and quantitative standards the average diet of the Indonesian people is poor Demand for food in Indonesia will increase significantly in the near future primarily due to the population and income effect From use of Okhawa's demand equation major shifts are expected toward the consumption of more rice and more protective foods Any rise in per capita income will bring strong pressure to increase the proportion of starches that are supplied by rice To meet this growing demand the need is to increase domestic production rather than commercial imports Trends in the production of the six major farm food crops have been constructed and analyzed for the period of 1950-1965 With the exception of groundnuts per capita production of these crops kept up with population growth However for the main food item rice the rate of increase of per capita production was lower than that of the per capita consumption This gap resulted in the importation of huge amounts of rice Analysis of the conditions of food production leads to the conclusion that three factors are mainly responsible for the production gap First the prevalence of disguised unemployment in the food industry second the lack of adequate credit facilities and capital in the rural areas third the lack of an efficient marketing organization Because of the inadequacies in these three important aspects of the institutional framework the process of adapting new technologies and inputs to the production of food is slow Speed is crucial In view of the population problem the longer the present trends are permitted to continue the more difficult it will be to close the production gap Analysis of these three factors leads to the following conclusions 1 Industrialization is a necessary condition for expanding food production and overall economic development in order to absorb the surplus agricultural labor force 2 Marketing reform is needed to improve the institutional framework in the producing areas in order to maximize the rate of growth of food production This reform includes providing adequate and efficient credit facilities promoting competition in the food market at the local level and improving the infrastructure

Local Food Systems and Community Economic Development R. David Lamie, Steven C. Deller, 2020-05-21 Local Food Systems and Community Economic Development provides scholarly and practical knowledge on a range of issues often associated with local food system development Many people agree that there are unintended consequences associated with the manner in which our food supply chain has evolved These concerns range in focus from health to environment to economic structure to social justice But for each argument critical of our current food system there are to be found strong counter arguments the popular press is replete with stories that lean toward taking specific sides in these arguments often demonizing those on the other side In this volume local food scholars strive to be fair balanced and as factual as possible in their arguments This even handed approach is appropriate as it should foster more sustainable community change and should lead us toward a stronger foundation for scholarly inquiry and ultimately more respect and credibility for efforts to better understand the phenomenon of local and regional food system development Amidst a deepening interest in local food systems as a community economic development strategy Local Food Systems and Community Economic Development will be of great interest to scholars of community development rural studies agriculture food systems and rural economy The chapters originally published as a special issue of Community Development

Population Growth and Food Supply Carol A. Singer,1993 Food Supply.

Agriculture, and Economic Development Glenn Leroy Johnson,1968 Keynes and Economic Development A.P. Thirlwall,1987-02-23 Food Security in a Developing World Pardeep Singh,Bendangwapang Ao,Nabajyoti Deka,Chander Mohan,Chhetan Chhoidub,2024-05-31 The book tries to answer the most fundamental question of whether there is a link between abundant food supply and economic growth with respect to a higher degree of human development In order to have flourishing economic growth within a country the need for a food security system is a must The world as we know is faced with shortages of food supply which has been a major factor in the country s economic development The book is an attempt to understand the problems and current situation of food systems in the developing world It focuses on the pathways to understand the challenges that it faces and predict future scenarios The motive is to create academic literature to understand the basis of sustainable food security The social economic and political factors become the main theme of the book It focuses on the interdisciplinary nature of food security Many a time we only understand the idea of food security through the lens of scientific nature but in the meantime it forgets the other important factors that are governing the issue of food security The inclusion of the cases section in the book helps to outline the current scenarios of the developing world It helps to formulate a pathway or a way forward to understand the causes of food security Food has now become a political context in the international system The need for analyzing the political angle is necessary The context of innovations and technological developments forms an important part of food security The critique of existing policy systems across the developing world is a must need discussion as it is the policies that will make the food systems sustainable Last but not least is to look at how the global food systems work and how far it has been able to fix the problems of food insecurity in the developing world Overall the book is an excellent interdisciplinary food security literature Economic Development of Japan William Wirt Lockwood,2015-12-08 The rise of Japan from agrarianism to a position as one of the leading industrial powers is one of the most dramatic and meaningful phenomena in economic history Professor Lockwood assistant director of the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs of Princeton University lucidly describes this astonishing transformation analyzes the factors involved capital technology foreign trade the role of the state etc and discusses the consequences Originally published in 1954 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905 Economic Growth and Development in Ethiopia Almas Heshmati,Haeyeon Yoon,2018-04-27 This volume is a collection of selected empirical studies on determinants of economic growth and development in Ethiopia The core argument for editing this book is to provide an up to date picture of the state and patterns of growth and development in Ethiopia Ethiopia has been under focus in the past due to draughts war famine development changes and the effects of global economic crisis in the country A main contribution of this volume is that it helps identify selected important determinants of growth and development in Ethiopia and provides an estimation of their effects using up to date data modelling and methods Taken together the studies provide a comprehensive picture of the state of growth and development their measurements causal relationships and evaluation of efficient policies and practices in achieving progress in Ethiopia The issues covered represent major challenges to the government and development organizations who are aiming at achieving higher growth and alleviating poverty in the country The studies cover transition from rural agriculture to urban industry and the development of services
