India and Global Climate Change Michael A. Toman, Ujjayant Chakravorty, Shreekanth Gupta, 2010-09-30 Though the impact of climate change will most likely be greatest with the already poor and vulnerable populations in the developing world much of the writing about the costs and benefits of different policies to reduce greenhouse gas GHG emissions is by Western scholars working in advanced industrialized economies Drawing the majority of its contributions from authors based at Indian universities and other research centers India and Global Climate Change provides a developing world perspective on the debate With a population of over one billion and an economy that is undergoing substantial restructuring and greatly increased economic growth after a number of years of stagnation India has an exceptional stake in the debate about climate change policy Using the Indian example this volume looks at such policy issues as the energy economy relationships that drive GHG emissions the options and costs for restricting GHG emissions while promoting sustainable development and the design of innovative mechanisms for expanded international cooperation with GHG mitigation

The State and Global Change Hassan Hakimian, Ziba Moshaver, 2020-08-11 Economic liberalisation and reform are widely considered as the favourite remedies for the declining economic fortunes of the Middle Eastern and North African states in the past two decades International economic institutions have been among the main advocates of transition to market led economies in the region and a force contributing to its realisation This has placed the state at the centre of the proposed transformations acting both as an instrument of and an obstacle to change With attempts at liberalisation worldwide spanning over twenty years the time is ripe for a re evaluation of its premises and outcome The essays in this volume debate the political economy of transition and reforms in the Middle East and North Africa drawing on interdisciplinary approaches and outlooks involving international regional and national levels of analysis The three central themes of the book are the rationale and strategies for reform the processes and outcomes and the nature of the state in the changing global setting environmental change and human societies have a long complex history spanning many millennia but these have changed fundamentally in the last century Human activities are now so pervasive and profound that they are altering the Earth in ways which threaten the very life support system upon which humans depend This book describes what is known about the Earth System and the impact of changes caused by humans It considers the consequences of these changes with respect to the stability of the Earth System and the well being of humankind as well as exploring future paths towards Earth System science in support of global sustainability

Global Warming and China's Environmental Diplomacy Hongyuan Yu, 2008 Since the early 1990s there are two increasingly hot topics attracting numerous scholarly attentions in Chinese politics first it is the transformation of China's political system Second it is China's increasingly involvement in international regimes Nevertheless until now there are only a few scholars to work out the distinctive relations between them and even less people work on the bureaucratic politics level By explaining and evaluating the development of policymaking coordination in the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change UNFCCC the author demonstrates the argument that international regimes have contributed to the development of coordination in Chinese Policymaking taking the UNFCCC as a departure

Climate Change Adaptation in Developed Nations James D. Ford, Lea Berrang-Ford, 2011-06-27 It is now widely accepted that adaptation will be necessary if we are to manage the risks posed by climate change What we know about adaptation however is limited While there is a well established body of scholarship proposing assessment approaches and explaining concepts few studies have examined if and how adaptation is taking place at a national or regional level
