

UChicago Careers in Health Professions

UChicago Careers in Health Professions (UCIHP) is a comprehensive, four-year, pre-professional program that provides College students with the resources and support to develop a customized portfolio of knowledge, skill sets, and experiences required for advanced study or employment in health and medicine. As early as their first year, pre-health students are advised on how to assess their strengths, hone their interests, and identify appropriate course work, research, internships and clinical opportunities.

Advising

The UCIHP team works closely with pre-health students to ensure they are prepared for both the application and job search processes. UCIHP frequently partners with other campus offices, including the University Community Service Center, Study Abroad and the Office of the Dean of Students in the College to provide advising tailored to each student's interests and strengths.

Career Exploration

UCIHP supports students and alumni as they explore the many health professions. The program offers panels and workshops throughout the academic year. Students have access to an onsite library with internship, career, and volunteer information. In addition, UCIHP invites admissions representatives from top schools to meet with pre-health students.

Metcalf Internship Opportunities

Each year, the Jeff Metcalf Internship Program provides over 1,000 UChicago undergraduates with paid, substantive internship opportunities in a wide range of fields, across the country and around the world. Health Professions focused employers include:

- Access Community Health

JUAN P. APARICIO

"UCIHP provided me the opportunity to develop a view of medicine which encompassed the bio-psycho-social model of medicine, preparing me to jump in to medical school as a well rounded, humanistic medical student. Without UCIHP I would have been clueless entering the medical school application cycle."

Workshops and Guest Speakers

UChicago Careers in Health Professions workshops are held throughout the academic year and cover an array of current topics and issues in the field of medicine and health. Some workshops and speakers include:

- Discussion of trends in health care with the President of UChicago Medicine
- Health Careers Forum exploring opportunities in Technology and innovation, Consulting, and Health Care Administration and Policy
- Panel Discussion on Careers in Mental Health Therapy
- Panel Discussion on Careers within Health Care Beyond the Stethoscope
- Health Policy seminar with the Former Director of the Illinois Violence Prevention Authority & Neighborhood Recovery Initiative
- Presentation on Physician Professionalism with a vascular surgeon and medical educator

Special Events

Competencies for Pre-Health Professional Students, Advisors, and Programs Ganjoo, Rohini, Schwartz, Lisa S., 2022-05-27

Today there is a significant need for healthcare professionals across disciplines and sectors as the world faces unprecedented health challenges and adopts innovative healthcare technologies. Despite this demand for a competent and eager healthcare workforce, the education and processes to becoming a qualified healthcare professional are complex and intricate, which may turn people away from this path due to confusion, fear, or doubt. In order to encourage and support those involved in medical education, further study on the best practices and challenges of developing confident and capable health professionals is required. The Handbook of Research on Developing Competencies for Pre Health Professional Students, Advisors and Programs provides insight into the critical skills and expertise essential for those interested in pursuing employment in healthcare, as well as current procedures and training to support them during their academic and professional careers. Covering topics such as lifelong learning skills, healthcare professions, and strategic learning, this major reference work is crucial for advisors, nurses, healthcare professionals, academicians, researchers, practitioners, scholars, instructors, and students.

Health Professions Career Opportunity Program ... Annual Report to the Legislature Health Professions Career Opportunity Program (Calif.), 1989      Tests on the Pathway to a Health Career, 1989      Undergraduate Education for Public Health in the United States Cheryl Lynn Addy, Daniel Shea Gerber, David Thomas Dyjack, Connie J. Evashwick, 2015-07-03

Undergraduate programs in public health are growing rapidly. At colleges and universities throughout the United States, both the number of programs and the number of students have expanded greatly in the past decade. In response to this trend, the Council for Education of Public Health (CEPH) has begun to accredit undergraduate public health programs, with the first programs approved in 2014. Around the country, programs exhibit wide variation, from concentrations in liberal arts colleges to pre-clinical foundations at doctorate-granting universities to undergraduate programs in accredited schools of public health. Faculty, both new and seasoned, are fully aware of the need to integrate undergraduate education in public health with graduate education, but the roadmaps of exactly how to do so are still nascent. The purpose of this Research Topic is to gather articles describing this variation with the intent that the collective body of work will facilitate analysis and discussion of what makes a quality education and builds a competent workforce.      Special Health Career
