Hearts And Darkness:

Heart of Darkness Joseph Conrad, 2021-02-25 A group of men are aboard an English ship that is sitting on the Thames. The group includes a Lawyer, an Accountant, a Company Director, Captain, and a man without a specific profession who is named Marlow. The narrator appears to be another unnamed guest on the ship. While they are loitering about waiting for the wind to pick up so that they might resume their voyage, Marlow begins to speak about London and Europe as some of the darkest places on earth. The narrator and other guests do not seem to regard him with much respect. Marlow is a stationary man, very unusual for a seaman. The others do not understand him because he does not fit into a neat category in the same manner that the others do. He mentions colonization and says that carving the earth into prizes or pieces is not something to examine too closely because it is an atrocity. He then begins to narrate a personal experience in Africa which led him to become a freshwater sailor and gave him a terrible glimpse of colonization. With the exception of two or three small paragraphs, the perspective shifts to Marlow who becomes the main narrator for the rest of the novel.

Envisioning Africa Peter Edgerly Firchow,2014-07-11 For one hundred years Heart of Darkness has been among the most widely read and taught novels in the English language Hailed as an incisive indictment of European imperialism in Africa upon its publication in 1899 more recently it has been repeatedly denounced as racist and imperialist Peter Firchow counters these claims and his carefully argued response allows the charges of Conrad's alleged bias to be evaluated as objectively as possible He begins by contrasting the meanings of race racism and imperialism in Conrad's day to those of our own time Firchow then argues that Heart of Darkness is a novel rather than a sociological treatise only in relation to its aesthetic significance can real social and intellectual historical meaning be established Envisioning Africa responds in detail to negative interpretations of the novel by revealing what they distort misconstrue or fail to take into account Firchow uses a framework of imagology to examine how national ethnic and racial images are portrayed in the text differentiating the idea of a national stereotype from that of national character He believes that what Conrad saw personally in Africa should not be confused with the Africa he describes in the novel Heart of Darkness is instead an envisioning and a revisioning of Conrad's experiences in the medium of fiction
