refusing he feared what Kirsty would say next But he relished nothing at all in the challenge It was not fit for a man to run races with a girl there were no laurels nothing but laughter to be won by victory over her and in his heart he was not at all sure of beating Kirsty she had always beaten him when they were children Since then they had been at the parish school together but there public opinion kept the boys and girls to their own special sports Now Kirsty had left school and Francis was going to the grammar school at the county town They were both about fifteen All the sense was on the side of the girl and she had been doing her best to make the boy practical like herself hitherto without much success although he was by no means a bad sort of fellow He had not yet passed the stage some appear never to pass it in this world in which an admirer feels himself in the same category with his hero Many are content with themselves because they side with those whose ways they do not endeavour to follow Such are most who call themselves Christians If men admired themselves only for what they did their conceit would be greatly moderated      Heather and Snow; A Novel George MacDonald, 2015-08-22 This work
