Magazine and Democratic Review XIV March 1844 The Intelligence Office is one of Hawthorne's more successful short allegories particularly noteworthy for the fact that it is here Ralph Waldo Emerson though disguised makes an appearance Hawthorne and Emerson although never close friends knew and liked each other They lived in the same town Concord Massachusetts for three years Hawthorne's wife Sophia was a Transcendentalist and an admirer of Emerson and the thirty four year old Emerson some ten years before the Hawthornes moved to Concord composed Nature the foundational work of Transcendental movement in the same house The Old Manse where the Hawthorne's would later live Nevertheless the great men's work had little in common Hawthorne dwelt in shadow Emerson lived in the light In The Intelligence Office Hawthorne creates a small host of shadows each seeking something from the grave figure with a pair of mysterious spectacles on his nose and a pen behind his ear The office itself seems to be a cross between a help wanted lost and found and a service which gives information and advice intelligence to people who have lost their way The grave figure is approached by many people a workingman looking for a tenement a young gentleman for a boarding house a woman for her vanished beauty an author for his once stellar reputation There is the an eager soul who wishes to find my place in the world a young man and young woman who wish to give their hearts away to someone else the author hints they find each other not necessarily happily a mournful man who has lost the Pearl of Great Price an unscrupulous old business man who is willing to give a great estate to someone who will assume his moral burden a literal old devil looking for a new master and many more Then comes someone who looks something like Emerson

The Pomegranate Seeds by Nathaniel Hawthorne

Nathaniel Hawthorne, July 4, 1804 – May 19, 1864, was an American novelist, dark romantic, and short story writer. His works often focus on history, morality, and religion. He was born in 1804 in Salem, Massachusetts, to Nathaniel Hathorne and the former Elizabeth Clarke Manning. His ancestors include John Hathorne, the only judge from the Salem witch trials who never repented his involvement. He entered Bowdoin College in 1821, was elected to Phi Beta Kappa in 1824, and graduated in 1825. He published his first work in 1828, the novel Fanshawe; he later tried to suppress it, feeling that it was not equal to the standard of his later work. He published several short stories in periodicals which he collected in 1837 as Twice Told Tales. The next year he became engaged to Sophia Peabody. He worked at the Boston Custom House and joined Brook Farm, a transcendentalist community, before marrying Peabody in 1842. The couple moved to The Old Manse in Concord, Massachusetts, later moving to Salem, the Berkshires, then to The Wayside in Concord. The Scarlet Letter was published in 1850, followed by a succession of other novels. A political appointment as consul took Hawthorne and family to Europe before their return to Concord in 1860. Hawthorne died on May 19, 1864, and was survived by his wife and their three children. Much of Hawthorne's writing centers on New England, many works featuring moral metaphors with an anti-Puritan inspiration. His fiction works are considered part of the Romantic movement and more specifically dark romanticism His themes often center on the inherent evil and sin of humanity and his works often have moral messages and deep psychological complexity His published works include novels short stories and a biography of his college friend Franklin Pierce the 14th President of the United States Nathaniel Hawthorne was born on July 4 1804 in Salem Massachusetts his birthplace is preserved and open to the public William Hathorne the author s great great great grandfather was a Puritan and the first of the family to emigrate from England He settled in Dorchester Massachusetts before moving to Salem There he became an important member of the Massachusetts Bay Colony and held many political positions including magistrate and judge becoming infamous for his harsh sentencing William s son and the author s great great grandfather John Hathorne was one of the judges who oversaw the Salem witch trials Hawthorne probably added the w to his surname in his early twenties shortly after graduating from college in an effort to dissociate himself from his notorious forebears Hawthorne s father Nathaniel Hathorne Sr was a sea captain who died in 1808 of yellow fever in Dutch Suriname he had been a member of the East India Marine Society After his death his widow moved with young Nathaniel and two daughters to live with relatives named the Mannings in Salem where they lived for 10 years Young Hawthorne was hit on the leg while playing bat and ball on November 10 1813 and he became lame and bedridden for a year though several physicians could find nothing wrong with him In the summer of 1816 the family lived as boarders with farmers before moving to a home recently built specifically for them by Hawthorne s uncles Richard and Robert Manning in Raymond Maine near Sebago Lake Years later Hawthorne looked back at his time in Maine fondly Those were delightful days for that part of the country was wild then with only scattered clearings and nine tenths of it primeval woods In 1819 he was sent back to Salem for school and soon complained of homesickness and being too far from his mother and sisters He distributed seven issues of The Spectator to his family in August and September 1820 for the sake of having fun The homemade newspaper was written by hand and included essays poems and news Sketches from Memory
