Race, Place, and Memory Margaret M. Mulrooney, 2022-03-15 A revealing work of public history that shows how communities remember their pasts in different ways to fit specific narratives Race Place and Memory charts the ebb and flow of racial violence in Wilmington North Carolina from the 1730s to the present day Margaret Mulrooney argues that white elites have employed public spaces memorials and celebrations to maintain the status quo The port city has long celebrated its white colonial revolutionary origins memorialized Decoration Day and hosted Klan parades Other events such as the Azalea Festival have attempted to present a false picture of racial harmony to attract tourists And yet the revolutionary acts of Wilmington's African American citizens who also demanded freedom first from slavery and later from Jim Crow discrimination have gone unrecognized As a result beneath the surface of daily life collective memories of violence and alienation linger among the city's black population Mulrooney describes her own experiences as a public historian involved in the centennial commemoration of the so called Wilmington Race Riot of 1898 which perpetuated racial conflicts in the city throughout the twentieth century She shows how despite organizers best efforts a white authored narrative of the riot's contested origins remains Mulrooney makes a case for public history projects that recognize the history making authority of all community members and prompts us to reconsider the memories we inherit A volume in the series Cultural Heritage Studies edited by Paul A Shackel Publication of the paperback edition made possible by a Sustaining the Humanities through the American Rescue Plan grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities

Cape Fear Lost Susan Taylor Block, 1999 Progress is a contradictory term one that inherently means an improvement of luxury and an advancement of technology yet usually at the expense of a community's identity traditions and history Though many buildings survived Civil War skirmishes and Northern occupation during Reconstruction these same structures did not escape the plans of ambitious entrepreneurs and thus disappeared from Wilmington's landscape only to be replaced over time by shopping plazas and nationally recognizable commercial facades Cape Fear Lost celebrates places that have vanished from presentday Wilmington In this volume of more than 200 photographs you will be able to explore the Wilmington of a bygone era one punctuated by unpaved tree lined streets and architecturally diverse dwellings As you thumb through these pages you will experience firsthand the beauty of many former mansions scattered throughout the downtown area familiar churches civic buildings and schools that once dotted the cityscape the many businesses that utilized the pedestrian horse and wagon and shipping traffic along Market Street and the transformation of Wrightsville Beach and Carolina Beach from humble summer bungalows into major tourist retreats These varied scenes allow you an extraordinary insight into this coastal communitye tm s changing character over the past century and a half
