Emotion Development And Self Organization Dynamic Systems Approaches To Emotional Development:

Emotion, Development, and Self-Organization Marc D. Lewis, Isabela Granic, 2000-07-31 Presented here for the first time is the idea that emotional development is self organizing. It replaces older ideas that genes or environments control the process of development. Self organization is one aspect of a revolutionary approach to science that embraces chaos theory and the new science of complexity. Physicists, chemists, biologists, and other scientists see self organization as a significant way of explaining patterns in nature.

Emotion, Development, and Self-organization Marc D. Lewis, Isabela Granic, 2000 Attention in Cognitive Systems. Theories and Systems from an Interdisciplinary Viewpoint Lucas Paletta, Erich Rome, 2007 This volume provides a much needed interdisciplinary angle on the subject of attention in cognitive systems. It constitutes the thoroughly refereed post-workshop proceedings of the 5th International Workshop on Attention in Cognitive Systems held in Hyderabad, India, in January 2007. The 31 papers are organized in topical sections that cover every aspect of the subject from the embodiment of attention and its cognitive control to the applications of attentive vision.

Developmental Psychopathology, Theory and Method Dante Cicchetti, 2016-02-29 The seminal reference for the latest research in developmental psychopathology. Developmental Psychopathology is a four-volume compendium of the most complete and current research on every aspect of the field. Volume One: Theory and Method focuses on the theoretical and empirical work that has contributed to dramatic advancements in understanding of child and adult development, including findings in the areas of genetics and neurobiology as well as social and contextual factors. Now in its third edition, this comprehensive reference has been fully updated to reflect the current state of the field and its increasingly multilevel and interdisciplinary nature and the increasing importance of translational research. Contributions from expert researchers and clinicians provide insight into how multiple levels of analysis may influence individual differences, the continuity or discontinuity of patterns, and the pathways by which the same developmental outcomes may be achieved. Advances in developmental psychopathology have burgeoned since the 2006 publication of the second edition ten years ago, and keeping up on the latest findings in multiple avenues of investigation can be burdensome to the busy professional and researcher from psychology and related fields. This reference solves the problem by collecting the best of the best, as edited by Dante Cicchetti, a recognized leader in the field, into one place with a logical organization designed for easy reference. Get up to date on the latest research from the field. Explore new models, emerging theory, and innovative approaches. Learn new technical analysis and research design methods. Understand the impact of life stage on mental health. The complexity of a field as diverse as developmental psychopathology deepens with each emerging theory and new area of study, as made obvious by the exciting findings coming out of institutions and clinics around the world. Developmental Psychopathology Volume One: Theory and Method brings these findings together into a cohesive, broad-reaching reference.

Appraisal Processes in Emotion Klaus R. Scherer,Angela

Schorr,Tom Johnstone,2001-05-03 The scientific study of emotion has long been dominated by theories emphasizing the subjective experience of emotions and their accompanying expressive and physiological responses The processes by which different emotions are elicited has received less attention the implicit assumption being that certain emotions arise automatically in response to certain types of events or situations Such an assumption is incompatible with data showing that similar situations can provoke a range of emotions in different individuals or even the same individual at different times Appraisal theory first suggested by Magda Arnold and Richard Lazarus was formulated to address this shortcoming in our understanding of emotion The central tenet of appraisal theory is that emotions are elicited according to an individual's subjective interpretation or evaluation of important events or situations Appraisal research focuses on identifying the evaluative dimensions or criteria that predict which emotion will be elicited in an individual as well as linking the appraisal process with the production of emotional responses This book represents the first full scale summary of the current state of appraisal research Separate sections cover the history of appraisal theory and its fundamental ideas the views of some of the major theorists currently active in the field theoretical and methodological problems with the appraisal approach including suggestions for their resolution social cultural and individual differences and the application of appraisal theory to understanding and treating emotional pathology and the methodology used in appraisal research including measuring and analyzing self report physiological facial and vocal indicators of appraisal and simulating appraisal processes via computational models Intended for advanced students and researchers in emotion psychology it provides an authoritative assessment and critique of the current state of the art in appraisal research

Development from Adolescence to Early Adulthood

Marion Kloep, Leo Hendry, Rachel Taylor, Ian Stuart-Hamilton, 2015-06-26 Traditionally the subject of adolescent development has been explored using a stage-based approach, often with an emphasis on the potential risks and problems of adolescence. Taking a different approach in this book, the authors draw upon a wealth of research to examine the period of development from adolescence to adulthood from a dynamic systems perspective, investigating multi-faceted, multi-variable explanations surrounding the transitions and consequent transformations that occur in young people's lives as they change from teenagers to young adults. The book considers the social institutions, interactions, contexts and relationships that influence each other and young people during developmental transitions. Topics covered include dynamic systems theory in developmental and social psychology, adolescents in social contexts, compliments, lies and other social skills, school, university and labour market transition, adolescent health in a lifespan context, family dynamics. Development from Adolescence to Early Adulthood will be key reading for academics, researchers and postgraduate students in the field of developmental psychology as well as clinicians and policy makers working with young people.

Cognitive and affective control Gilles Pourtois, Wim Notebaert, Tom Verguts, Traditionally cognition and emotion are seen as separate domains that are independent at best and in competition at worst The French scientist and philosopher Blaise Pascal 1623-1662 famously said Le coeur a ses raisons que la raison ne connaît point The heart has its reasons that reason does not know Over the last century however psychologists and neuroscientists have increasingly appreciated their very strong reciprocal connections and interactions Initially this was demonstrated in cognitive functions such as attention learning and memory and decision making For instance an emotional stimulus captures attention e.g. Anderson Verguts Notebaert 2009 From this perspective cognitive control is not a cool encapsulated executive function but instead involves rapidly calculating the value of situational contextual and action cues Rushworth Behrens 2008 for the purpose of adapting the cognitive system toward future optimal performance A wide array of research has shed light on cognitive control and its interactions with affect or motivation Behaviorally important phenomena include how people respond to difficult stimuli e.g. incongruent stimuli task switches negative feedback or errors and how this influences subsequent task processing Neurally an important target structure has been the anterior cingulate cortex ACC and its connections to traditional emotional e.g. amygdala and cognitive areas e.g. pre-motor cortex dorsolateral prefrontal cortex ACC seems to play a predominant role in integrating distant effects from remote cognitive and emotion systems in order to guide and optimize behavior The current special issue focuses on the bi-directional link between emotion and cognitive control We invite studies that investigate the influence from emotion on cognitive control or vice versa the influence of cognitive control on emotion Contributions can be of different types We welcome empirical contributions behavioral or neuroscientific but also computational modeling theory or review papers By bringing together researchers from the traditionally separated domains we hope to further stimulate the crosstalk between emotion and cognitive control and thus to deepen our understanding of both Handbook of Emotions
