LaFreniere, 2000 Emotional Development is an area that has seen an explosion of research over the past 15 years Peter LaFreniere's timely book is the first text to synthesize this sub field in an accessible text aimed explicitly at both advanced undergraduates and beginning graduate students One of the central themes of this book is that emotions must be understood in an integrative way because of their complex connections with biological cognitive and social processes all of which undergo development Because of this essential unity emotional development is discussed not as a separate aspect of the self but as intimately linked to cognitive linguistic social and personality development EMOTIONAL DEVELOPMENT A BIOSOCIAL PERSPECTIVE defines and describes a biosocial perspective on emotional development This biosocial perspective emphasizes the vital functions that emotions serve illustrating the necessity of uniting nature and nurture in order to more fully understand the development and function of human emotions Evolutionary Perspectives on Human Development Robert G. Burgess, Kevin MacDonald, 2005 This new edition of Evolutionary Perspectives on Human Development is obligatory reading for anyone interested in the integration of evolutionary theory into developmental psychology It provides a valuable corrective to recent narrow approaches which argue that the human mind is constructed exclusively of domain specific mechanisms and which deemphasize the importance of human psychological and behavioral plasticity Anyone who reads this book will come away with a richer understanding of our shared human nature Bill Irons Northwestern University In this volume Burgess and MacDonald have brought together a distinguished group of psychologists and anthropologists to investigate how given our evolutionary heritage genetic make up and salient environment behavior cognition and emotion unfold from the human organism They make clear that both evolutionary functional and proximate behavioral perspectives are essential to understanding the human mind and its products Many of these essays should be required reading for sociobiologists evolutionary psychologists and evolutionary anthropologists and their ilk Jeffrey Kurland Penn State It's clear that evolutionary biology has a tremendous amount to offer when it comes to our understanding of human development and yet many experts in developmental psychology have remained impervious to these insights At last this may change Burgess and MacDonald have compiled a rich array of theory and data much of it contributed by the leading lights of evolutionary psychology or if you prefer sociobiology A very valuable collection and one that might help define a new and important field David P Barash University of Washington Evolutionary Perspectives on Human Development Second Edition considers the role of evolutionary theory in the field of developmental psychology to examine key topics of individual human development This unique book fills an important gap in the literature applying evolutionary models to human development by focusing on central development issues The book emphasizes both domain general evolved psychological mechanisms and domain specific processes The text also integrates behavior genetic research with evolutionary and developmental principles In this contributed volume editors Robert L Burgess and Kevin MacDonald have brought together a distinguished group of social and behavioral scientists employing multiple levels of analysis drawn from a variety of academic disciplines This diverse group of contributors illustrates the enormous power of evolutionary theory by elucidating human behavior and its development and the various ways it is manifested in different environments Evolutionary Perspectives on Human Development applies evolutionary theory to such topics as parent child relationships the maltreatment of children psychopathology cooperation and competition among siblings and the acquisition of vital resources in different cultural settings from an evolutionary point of view Key Features Comprehensive coverage of the impact of evolutionary theory on human development provides students with the most thorough foundation available in this area Contributions by leading scholars and researchers expose readers to the exciting research and developments that have been occurring in the field An introductory chapter written by the volume editors provides an accessible overview of the book Evolutionary Perspectives on Human Development provides state of the art groundwork in evolutionary theory as viewed by leading thinkers in the field It is an excellent supplementary textbook for advanced undergraduate and graduate courses in evolutionary and developmental psychology

Significance of the Blush W. Ray Crozier, Peter J. de Jong, 2012-11-29 The blush is a ubiquitous yet little understood phenomenon which can be triggered by a number of self-conscious emotions such as shame, embarrassment, shyness, pride and guilt. The field of psychology has seen a recent surge in the research of such emotions yet blushing remains a relatively neglected area. This unique volume brings together leading researchers from a variety of disciplines to review emerging research on the blush, discussing in depth issues that have arisen and stimulating new theorizing to indicate future directions for research. Topics covered include the psychophysiology of the blush, developmental aspects, measurement issues, its evolutionary significance and the role of similar colour signals in the social life of other species, its relation to embarrassment, shame and social anxiety, and the rationale for and clinical trials of interventions to help people suffering from blushing phobia.

Women in Psychiatry 2023: Autism Rita Barone, Costanza Colombi, 2025-04-11 This Research Topic is the next volume in the series; see the previous volume here. At present, fewer than 30% of researchers worldwide are women. Long-standing biases and gender stereotypes are discouraging girls and women away from science-related fields, and STEM research in particular. Science and gender equality are, however, essential to ensure sustainable development as highlighted by UNESCO. In order to change traditional mindsets, gender equality must be promoted, stereotypes defeated, and girls and women should be encouraged to pursue STEM careers. Therefore, Frontiers in Psychiatry is proud to offer this platform to promote the work of women scientists across all fields of Psychiatry. The work presented here highlights the diversity of research performed across the entire breadth of Psychiatry research and presents advances in theory, experiment, and methodology with applications to compelling problems. Please note: To be considered for this collection, the first or last author should be a researcher who identifies as a woman. Important Note: All contributions to this Research Topic must be within the scope of the section and journal to which they are submitted as defined in their mission statements. Frontiers reserves the right to guide an out-of-scope manuscript to a more suitable section or journal at any stage of peer review.

Alienation and Affect Warren TenHouten, 2016-12-01 Alienation has objective social structural determinants yet is experienced subjectively as a psychological state involving both emotion and cognition. Part I considers conceptualizations of alienation and affect in historical context, emphasizing Rousseau, Hegel, Marx, Simmel, and Weber. Part II develops a theory of the affective bases of Seaman's original five varieties of alienation: normlessness, meaninglessness, self-estrangement, cultural estrangement, and powerlessness. The book argues that both normlessness and cultural estrangement manifest in two distinct forms and involve distinct emotions. Thus, it develops the affective bases of seven distinct varieties of alienation. This work synthesizes classical and contemporary alienation theory and the sociology of emotions. It contributes to political sociology and finds application in social psychiatry and related health and social service fields that treat traumatized and highly alienated individuals.
