Multilinguals' Verbalisation and Perception of Emotions Pia Resnik, 2018-06-18 This book investigates the interplay of language emotion and gender in a multilingual context and provides rich insights into the complexities of bilingualism and the field of emotion research as well as the intersection of both Combining quantitative and qualitative analyses of data the book examines multilinguals verbalisation and perception of emotions in their first language and English their second language L2 The research looks at crosslinguistic intercultural and gender based differences thereby highlighting the challenges faced by multilinguals in this context and the potential risks of miscommunication and misinterpretation Results support the call for a change of paradigm towards a holistic approach to multilingualism and emotion research and highlight the similarities and differences in L2 users of English when expressing their emotions in the different languages The book will appeal to anyone interested in research on emotions in the context of bi multilingualism or second language acquisition as well as those teaching or learning multiple languages The Bilingual Mind Aneta Pavlenko, 2014-02-06 If languages influence the way we think do bilinguals think differently in their respective languages And if languages do not affect thought why do bilinguals often perceive such influence For many years these questions remained unanswered because the research on language and thought had focused solely on the monolingual mind Bilinguals were either excluded from this research as unusual or messy subjects or treated as representative speakers of their first languages Only recently did bi and multilinguals become research participants in their own right Pavlenko considers the socio political circumstances that led to the monolingual status quo and shows how the invisibility of bilingual participants compromised the validity and reliability of findings in the study of language and cognition She then shifts attention to the bilingual turn in the field and examines its contributions to the understanding of the human mind
