Friendly Intruders Childcare Professionals And Family Life:

Friendly Intruders Carole E. Joffe, 1977-01-01      Friendly Intruders Carole Joffe, 2024-03-29 The governments of many industrialized societies have developed extensive childcare facilities and services to meet the needs of young children and their working parents but no such program on a national scale has yet evolved in the United States. Some who oppose federal aid or control believe that mothers should remain at home with their preschool children rather than turn them over to childcare professionals the friendly intruders of the title and that any other policy is a threat to the moral climate and stability of family life. However since the demand for childcare services is very great and since Congress has previously passed relevant legislation which was vetoed by President Nixon the issue of childcare will surely rise again soon. In this study based upon direct observation of a local childcare program in California the author examines several of the practical policy issues concerning childcare which have not yet been resolved. Who will control such programs in the future public school systems or others? Which agencies or institutions will certify the competence of childcare personnel? To what extent will parents contribute to the content of the programs provided for their young children? A major part of Professor Joffe's study is concerned with the emerging professionalism of early childhood educators. In a pattern now understood to be classic such persons seek status and recognition through education certification and membership in professional associations. However what happens when parents and professionals disagree about values behavioral norms and the educational content of a nursery school program? Who is the expert in such a confrontation? The author observed profoundly different orientations to childcare not only between professionals and parents but also among different groups of parents especially along racial and class lines. How can professionals accommodate such differences? The author's conclusions emerge from careful study of day by day encounters between staff parents and supervisors giving to her book a sense of immediacy and well focused understanding that is rarely achieved in academic studies. Parents educators and policy analysts concerned with the subject will find it indispensable. This title is part of UC Press's Voices Revived program which commemorates University of California Press's mission to seek out and cultivate the brightest minds and give them voice reach and impact. Drawing on a backlist dating to 1893 Voices Revived makes high quality peer reviewed scholarship accessible once again using print on demand technology. This title was originally published in 1977      Research Relating to Children, 1975      Negotiated Care Margaret Nelson, 2010-03-29 Weaving together numerous richly detailed interviews and surveys with recent feminist literature on the role of caregiving in women's lives and investigations of women's involvement in home based work this book explores the daily lives of family day care providers. Margaret K Nelson uncovers the dilemmas providers face in their relationships with parents who bring children to them with the children themselves with the providers family members and with representatives of the state's regulatory system. She links these dilemmas to the contradiction between an increasing demand for personalized cheap informal child care services and a public policy that subjects child care providers to public

scrutiny while giving them limited material and ideological support Nelson's discussions with day care providers reveal considerable tensions that emerge over issues of control and intimacy The dual motivation of business and family gives rise to problems such as how to maintain enough distance from the parents to set limits on hours while providing personal service in a family setting Family day care providers often enter this occupation as a way to engage in paid work and meet their own child care responsibilities This book looks at how they manage to negotiate a setting that simultaneously involves money trust and caring Family day care represents one of the most prevalent sources of child care for working parents It is an especially common form of care for very young children yet it remains little studied In the popular press stereotypes many of them negative prevail This book substitutes a thorough detailed examination of this child care setting from a perspective that has generally been ignored that of the caregiver While providing useful insights into the role of caregiving in women's lives and the phenomenon of home based work it contributes to the ongoing policy debates about child care In the series Women in the Political Economy edited by Ronnie J Steinberg      America's Family Support Programs Sharon Lynn Kagan, 1987-01-01 Essays discuss the prevention of child abuse day care family education program funding and staffing family research and program evaluation      Making Care Work Lynet Uttal, 2002 As ever more women work outside the home ever more families employ childcare workers In the absence of government regulations or social models that clearly define the childcare provider's role mothers worry about the quality of care their children are getting By connecting the personal level of mothers' daily experiences to the larger political economic and ideological context of childcare Lynet Uttal describes and explains how mothers rely on their relationship with the providers to monitor and influence the quality of care their children receive Whereas other studies have emphasized how mothers undervalue and exploit providers this book paints a more nuanced picture arguing that the ties between adults who share in the care of children creates neither heroes nor victims This ethnography reveals that mothers are often reluctant to discuss their concerns with their childcare providers Uttal shows how mothers walk a fine line between wanting to believe in the quality of care they have chosen and the fact that they might have made a mistake Catalyzed by their worries about the quality of care mothers develop complex relationships with the women and most are women who look after their children      Shadow Mothers Cameron Lynne Macdonald, 2011-02-09 Shadow Mothers shines new light on an aspect of contemporary motherhood often hidden from view the need for paid childcare by women returning to the workforce and the complex bonds mothers forge with the shadow mothers they hire Cameron Lynne Macdonald illuminates both sides of an unequal and complicated relationship Based on in depth interviews with professional women and childcare providers immigrant and American born nannies as well as European au pairs Shadow Mothers locates the roots of individual skirmishes between mothers and their childcare providers in broader cultural and social tensions Macdonald argues that these conflicts arise from unrealistic ideals about mothering and inflexible career paths and work schedules as well as from the devaluation of paid care work      The State, the Family and Education (Routledge Revivals) Miriam David, 2015-06-03 In The State The Family and Education first published in 1980 Miriam David provides an entirely new analysis of the relationship of the State to the family and education David shows how the State through its educational policies regulates family relationships with and within schools This book provides a welcome analysis of educational policy from a socialist feminist perspective re examining the ways in which women as parents teachers and pupils are involved in the education system This book will be of interests to students of education significant social contexts including social support systems during the parenting years and those for the elderly black families and poor families      Current Topics in Early Childhood Education, Volume 5 Lilian G. Katz,1984-01-01 The chapters in this volume are divided into three sections In the first section the authors provide a framework for the reader by setting ethnography in context Chapters cover definitions of ethnography its basic underlying principles and propose ways in which it can be useful to education The second section presents a range of ethnographic studies The research presented defines by illustration some essential characteristics of ethnography Chapters in the third section reflect on the different themes issues and concerns of the field of ethnography and education in general and of the articles in the volume in particular The central themes are continuity vs discontinuity in children s lives the role of folklore in education researcher educator collaboration and micro vs macro levels of analysis Children Reading and Writing Structures and Strategies      Challenging the School Readiness Agenda in Early Childhood Education Miriam B. Tager,2017-03-27 Challenging the normative paradigm that school readiness is a positive and necessary objective for all young children this book asserts that the concept is a deficit based practice that fosters the continuation of discriminatory classifications Tager draws on findings of a qualitative study to reveal how the neoliberal agenda of school reform based on high stakes testing sorts and labels children as non ready affecting their overall schooling careers Tager reflects critically on the relationship between race and school readiness showing how the resulting exclusionary measures perpetuate the marginalization of low income Black children from an early age Disrupting expected notions of readiness is imperative to ending practices of structural classism and racism in early childhood education      Catalog of Copyright Entries. Soderman, 2013-12-01 The United Nations designation of 1979 as the International Year of the Child marked the first global effort undertaken to heighten awareness of the special needs of children Activities initiated during this special year were designed to promote purposive and collaborative actions for the benefit of children throughout the world Michigan State University's celebration of the International Year of the Child was held from September 1979 through June 1980 A variety of activities focused attention on the multiplicity of factors affecting the welfare of today's children as well as the children of the future Many people involved with the university were concerned that benefits to children continue beyond the official time allocated to the celebration The series Child Nurturance is one response to this concern The first five volumes of Child Nurturance reflect directly the activities held on the Michigan State University campus and consist of original contributions from guest speakers and invited contributors Subsequent biennial volumes will present original contributions from individuals representing such fields as anthropology biology education human ecology psychology philosophy sociology and medicine We hope the material presented in these volumes will promote greater understanding of children and encourage interdisciplinary inquiry into the individual family societal and cultural variables which influence their welfare and development We would like to express both our thanks and our admiration for Margaret Burritt who not only typed the camera ready copy for each of the volumes but also served as general manager of the entire project Diversity in Day Care

Rebecca Wheat, 1989 This study explores the relationship between parent values and the day care experience It draws upon the day care literature and envelops this literature within the framework of human values It employs open ended interviews with both subsidized and non subsidized day care parents as well as day care directors who have subsidized families in their programs The book is organized into themes and investigates the issue of subsidizing day and care and how this relates to parental choice Also explored are the issues of day care as a world of continuity or discontinuity day care as an enriched or less than enriched world and the relationship between day care and family life The views of day care directors are also presented Child Care in Context Michael E.
