Emil Bisttram Nora Eccles Harrison Museum of Art, 1987 Includes a biography of the artist and a description of the featured artwork      The Preservation of the Village Suzanne Forrest, 1998 The New Mexico difference The roots of dependence The mystique of the village Assault on Arcadia The New Mexico Mexico new deal connection Federal relief comes to New Mexico Implementing the cultural agenda Restoring village lands The final years and later Reprise      Emil Bisttram Ruth Pasquine, 2010-06 The primary focus is how Bisttram used dynamic symmetry as a way of constructing his pictures to imbue them with spiritual meaning Bisttram's teaching materials and reading lists reveal that his spiritual approach to art was based on studying the writings of Swedenborg Blavatsky Ouspensky Claude Bragdon and Alice Bailey and that he had wide ranging interests which included color theory he used Denman Ross's system psychology Jung Rank Rudhyar and music This combination of interests reflects his own personal search for the integration of science and religion and western and eastern traditions The author argues that while many of his works are influenced by such artists as Picasso Rivera and Kandinsky there is a body of work that he executed in the 1930s specifically his Native American abstractions and his Cosmic Egg and Time Cycle Series that are uniquely original and purely his own based on his own direct experience and research      The Fiftieth Anniversary of the U.S. Department of Justice Building, 1934-1984 Antonio Vasaio, 1984

Boehme, 2016-02-17 Artists and filmmakers in the early twentieth century reshaped our vision of the American West In particular the Taos Society of Artists and the California based artist Maynard Dixon departed from the legendary depiction of the Wild West and fostered new images or brands for western art This volume illustrated with more than 150 images examines select paintings and films to demonstrate how these artists both enhanced and contradicted earlier representations of the West Prior to this period American art tended to portray the West as a wild frontier with untamed lands and peoples Renowned artists such as Henry Farny and Frederic Remington set their work in the past invoking an environment immersed in conflict and violence This trademark perspective began to change however when artists enamored with the Southwest stamped a new imprint on their paintings The contributors to this volume illuminate the complex ways in which early twentieth century artists as well as filmmakers evoked a southwestern environment not just suspended in time but also permanent rather than transient Yet as the authors also reveal these artists were not entirely immune to the siren call of the vanishing West and their portrayal of peaceful yet exotic Native Americans was an expansion rather than a dismissal of earlier tropes Both brands cast a romantic spell on the West and both have been seared into public consciousness Branding the American West is published in association with the Brigham Young University Museum of Art Provo Utah and the Stark Museum of Art Orange Texas

Underdog Harvey Ferguson, 2023-10 In 1932 the worst year of the Great Depression more than twenty thousand mostly homeless World War I veterans trekked to the nation's capital to petition Congress to grant them early payment of a promised bonus The Hoover Administration and the local government urged Washington DC police chief Pelham Glassford to forcefully drive this bonus army out of the city Instead he defied both governments for months and found food and shelter for the veterans until Congress voted on their request Glassford's efforts to persuade federal and local officials to deal sympathetically with the protesters were ultimately in vain but his proposed solutions though disregarded by his supervisors demonstrate that compassion and empathy could be more effective ways of dealing with radical protests than violent suppression
