From Conflict To Negotiation Nature Based Development On South Africas Wild Coast:

From Conflict to Negotiation Robin Palmer, Herman Timmermans, Derick Fay, 2002 This is a South African case study of the shift from protectionism to sustainable development in the 1990s Natures of Colonial Change Jacob A. Tropp, 2006-10-01 In this groundbreaking study Jacob A Tropp explores the interconnections between negotiations over the environment and an emerging colonial relationship in a particular South African context the Transkei subsequently the largest of the notorious homelands under apartheid In the late nineteenth century South Africa s Cape Colony completed its incorporation of the area beyond the Kei River known as the Transkei and began transforming the region into a labor reserve It simultaneously restructured popular access to local forests reserving those resources for the benefit of the white settler economy This placed new constraints on local Africans in accessing resources for agriculture livestock management hunting building materials fuel medicine and ritual practices Drawing from a diverse array of oral and written sources Tropp reveals how bargaining over resources between and among colonial officials chiefs and headmen and local African men and women was interwoven with major changes in local political authority gendered economic relations and cultural practices as well as with intense struggles over the very meaning and scope of colonial rule itself Natures of Colonial Change sheds new light on the colonial era in the Transkei by looking at significant yet neglected dimensions of this history how both colonizing and colonized groups negotiated environmental access and how such negotiations helped shape the broader making and meaning of life in the new colonial order

The Politics of Nature and Science in Southern Africa Maano Ramutsindela, Giorgio Miescher, Melanie Boehi, 2016-09-12 This book brings together recent and ongoing empirical studies to examine two relational kinds of politics namely the politics of nature i e how nature conservation projects are sites on which power relations play out and the politics of the scientific study of nature These are discussed in their historical and present contexts and at specific sites on which particular human environment relations are forged or contested This spatio temporal juxtaposition is lacking in current research on political ecology while the politics of science appears marginal to critical scholarship on social nature Specifically the book examines power relations in nature related activities demonstrates conditions under which nature and science are politicised and also accounts for political interests and struggles over nature in its various forms The ecological socio political and economic dimensions of nature cannot be ignored when dealing with present day environmental issues Nature conservation regulations are concerned with the management of flora and fauna as much as with humans Various chapters in the book pay attention to the ways in which nature science and politics are interrelated and also co constitutive of each other They highlight that power relations are naturalised through science and science related institutions and projects such as museums botanical gardens wetlands parks and nature reserves

Community-Based Natural Resource Management in Southern Africa Center for African Studies at the University of Florida, 2013-06-05 Community based natural resource management CBNRM is a compelling concept if people are allowed to be custodians of their resources better management of the resources will result CBNRM is much more complex and challenging than has commonly been understood but can provide a way to achieve a more equitable and sustainable approach to the use of natural resources This book has a focus on Southern Africa It is aimed at students of natural resource management including undergraduates conservation practitioners and development sector implementing agents It is theoretically grounded but has a major applied focus with respect to understanding the why what and how of CBNRM in order to more effectively guide natural resource management It is not a manual with explanatory details about implementation measures rather it helps the reader to understand the complexity of CBNRM and provides a guide to other resources that will assist in enhancing learning Part I consists of ten chapters After introducing the CBNRM concept consideration is given to the following History as a Determinant of Progress Economic Foundations Well Being Livelihoods and Business Institutions and Governance Stakeholder Analysis Adaptive Management Capacity Development and Learning and Communication for Effective Implementation Part II is devoted to eight case studies from the Southern Africa region that illustrates some of the issues considered in Part I They are included to provide material that can be used as site specific examples and teaching aids to complement general discussion of the issues

Forestry and Water Conservation in South Africa Brett Bennett, Fred Kruger, 2015-11-11 This innovative interdisciplinary study focuses on the history science and policy of tree planting and water conservation in South Africa South Africa's forestry sector has sat often controversially at the crossroads of policy and scientific debates regarding water conservation economic development and biodiversity protection Bennett and Kruger show how debates about the hydrological impact of exotic tree planting in South Africa shaped the development of modern scientific ideas and state policies relating to timber plantations water conservation invasive species control and biodiversity management within South Africa as well as elsewhere in the world Forestry and Water Conservation in South Africa shows how scientific research on the impact of exotic and native vegetation led to the development of a comprehensive national policy for conserving water producing timber and protecting indigenous species from invasive alien plants Policies and laws relating to forests and water began to change in the late 1980s and early 1990s as a result of political and administrative changes within South Africa This book suggests that the country's contemporary policies towards timber plantations guided by the National Water Act of 1998 need to be reconsidered in light of the authors findings Bennett and Kruger also call for more interdisciplinary research and greater emphasis on integrated policies and management plans for forestry invasive alien plants water conservation and biodiversity preservation

South African Homelands as Frontiers Steffen Jensen, Olaf Zenker, 2018-02-02 This book explores what happened to the homelands in many ways the ultimate apartheid disgrace after the fall of apartheid The nine chapters contribute to understanding the multiple configurations that currently exist in areas formerly declared homelands or Bantustans Using the concept of frontier zones the homelands emerge as areas in which the future of the South African postcolony is being renegotiated contested and remade with hyper real intensity This is so because the many fault lines left over from apartheid its loose ends so to speak between white and black between different ethnicities between rich and poor or differentiated by gender generation and nationality between traditions and modernities or between wilderness and human habitation are particularly acute and condensed in these so called communal areas Hence the book argues that it is particularly in these settings that the postcolonial promise of liberation and freedom must face its test As such the book offers highly nuanced and richly detailed analyses that go to the heart of the diverse dilemmas of post apartheid South Africa as a whole but simultaneously also provides in condensed form an extended case study on the predicaments of African postcoloniality in general This book was originally published as a special issue of the Journal of Southern African Studies Land, Law and Chiefs in Rural South Africa William Beinart, Rosalie Kingwill, Gavin Capps, 2021-05-01 This edited collection illustrates contestations over land and political authority in South Africa's rural areas focusing on threats to popular rights and how they are being supported Who controls the land and minerals in the former Bantustans of South Africa chiefs the state or landholders Disputes are taking place around the ownership of resources decisions about their exploitation and who should benefit With respect to all of these issues the courts have become increasingly important The contributors to Land Law and Chiefs in Rural South Africa capture some of these intense contestations over land law and political authority focussing on threats to the rights of ordinary people History and customary law feature strongly in most disputes and succession to chieftaincy is also frequently disputed Judges have to make decisions in a context where rival claimants to property or office assert their own versions of history and custom The South African constitution recognizes customary law and the courts are attempting to incorporate and develop this branch of jurisprudence as living customary law Lawyers community leaders and academics are called on to assist in researching cases around restitution land rights and customary law The chapters in this collection discuss legal cases and policy directions that have evolved since 1994 Some chapters analyze the increasing power of chiefs in the South African rural areas while others suggest that the courts are giving support to popular rights over land and supporting local democratic processes Contributors record significant pushback from groups that reject traditional authority These political tensions are a central theme of the collection and thus serve as vital case studies in furthering our understanding of rights and restitution in South Africa Trade Unions in the Green Economy Nora Räthzel, David L. Uzzell, 2013 Combating climate change will increasingly impact on production industries and the workers they employ as production changes and consumption is targeted Yet research has largely ignored labour and its responses This book brings together sociologists psychologists political scientists historians economists and representatives from international and local unions based in Australia Brazil South Africa Taiwan Spain Sweden the UK and the USA Together they open up a new area of research Environmental Labour Studies The authors ask what kind of environmental policies are unions in different countries and sectors developing How do they aim to reconcile the protection of jobs with the protection of the environment What are the forms of cooperation developing between trade unions and environmental movements especially the so called Red Green alliances Under what conditions are unions striving to create climate change policies that transcend the economic system Where are they trying to find solutions that they see as possible within the present socio economic conditions What are the theoretical and practical implications of trade unions Just Transition and the problems and perspectives of Green Jobs The authors also explore how food workers rights would contribute to low carbon agriculture the role workers identities play in union climate change policies and the difficulties of creating solidarity between unions across the global North and South Trade Unions in the Green Economy opens the climate change debate to academics and trade unionists from a range of disciplines in the fields of labour studies environmental politics environmental management and climate change policy It will also be useful for environmental organisations trade unions business and politicians
