Farming With Nature:

Farming with Nature Sara J. Scherr, Jeffrey A. McNeely, 2012-09-26 A growing body of evidence shows that agricultural landscapes can be managed not only to produce crops but also to support biodiversity and promote ecosystem health. Innovative farmers and scientists as well as indigenous land managers are developing diverse types of ecoagriculture landscapes to generate cobenefits for production biodiversity and local people. Farming with Nature offers a synthesis of the state of knowledge of key topics in ecoagriculture. The book is a unique collaboration among renowned agricultural and ecological scientists leading field conservationists and farm and community leaders to synthesize knowledge and experience across sectors. The book examines the knowledge base for ecoagriculture as well as barriers, gaps, and opportunities for developing improved ecoagriculture systems, what we have learned about managing landscapes to achieve multiple objectives at a landscape scale, existing incentives for farmers, other land managers, and investors to develop and invest in ecoagriculture systems, pathways to develop, implement, manage, and scale up successful ecoagriculture. Insights are drawn from around the world in tropical, Mediterranean, and temperate environments from farming systems that range from highly commercialized to semi-subsistence. Farming with Nature is an important new work that can serve as a foundation document for planners, farm organizations, researchers, project developers, and policy makers to develop strategies for promoting and sustaining ecoagriculture landscapes. Replete with valuable best practice guidelines, it is a critical resource for both practitioners and researchers in the field.

Mad Cow Crisis Scott Ratzan, 2005-08-05 The announcement that BSE might cause a fatal human disease, Creutzfeldt-Jacob disease (CJD), triggered enormous media attention, public alarm, and government wrangling that threatened the future of European integration. As Scott Ratzan argues, it is my belief that the BSE crisis represents a quintessential case that will go down in history as the Exxon Valdez, Union Carbide's Bhopal accident, and other such cases of interdisciplinary study. This book offers lessons learned from the crisis with contributions from experts with different viewpoints: veterinarians, Eurocrats, public relations experts, politicians, policy makers, journalists, and representatives of the beef industry. It also offers a compilation of the key reports from governmental bodies as a case study in policy making, scientific health discovery, and dissemination of information, as well as looking at the issues from the perspective of psychology and media studies.

Working With Nature Carl F. Jordan, 2013-10-31 First Published in 1998, this important work looks at an alternative approach to resource production systems, taking the view that many environmental problems associated with conventional resource management are avoidable if we work with nature instead of trying to dominate it. Jordan argues that achieving sustainability in production systems is best accomplished by encouraging a change in the relationship between humans and nature from one of exploitation through control to one of sustainability through cooperation.

The Ancient Footsteps : Rediscovering Our Bond with Nature Dr. Rajesh Narayan

Singh , We grew up with stories where rivers were mothers trees were elders and animals were companions But as we became more modern we also became more distant from that world This book is not about guilt it s about love It s a gentle invitation to slow down reconnect and reimagine our place in the natural world Inside this book you ll discover Why rivers are more than just water bodies they re lifelines What forests teach us about peace memory and stillness How the soil beneath us holds wisdom healing and stories A reflection on ancient rituals barefoot traditions and sun salutations Through poetic prose emotional reflection and rooted cultural wisdom this book reminds us that nature is not a resource but a relationship If you ve ever paused under a tree and felt something stir inside you this book is yours Farming with Nature : Science & Practical Sara J,2007
