Farewell to Steam at Waterloo Michael S. Stokes,1983 Farewell to Steam Roger Siviter,2004 This collection of photographs focuses on the last days of steam in Britain from March 1966 to August 1968 right up to the final twenty four hours of mainline steam operation A wide range of motive power is illustrated hauling main line expresses as well as freight trains Farewell to Steam David Plowden,1966 More than 150 nostalgic pictures of some of the last steam locomotives and steamboats to function on North American rails and inland waterways A Farewell to Steam Southern Pacific Company Passenger Traffic Public Relations Department,1958 A Farewell to Steam Tony Butcher,2010 In the years following the Modernisation Plan of 1955 main line steam traction was in rapid retreat from BR metals and as the process of line withdrawals and the elimination of familiar steam locomotive classes accelerated an increasing number of special services were operated often taking locomotives to unfamiliar haunts and providing once in a lifetime opportunities to record sights that were soon to become part of history For almost a decade from June 1961 through to the final withdrawal of main line steam in August 1968 Tony Butcher travelled widely through the country recording these special workings in color His collection which is almost exclusively unpublished provides a colorful reminder of the many special trains that were operated on BR metals during these years This large format all color album includes 140 fine images from these years with detailed accompanying captions which include anecdotal information about the significance of each of the trains And That'S the Truth! Carl W. McClure,2012-09-18 And That's the Truth Meaningful fiction to stimulate your mind and nurture your soul is a treasury of short fiction stories Most of the narrators in Part One are animals talking about themselves You learn how dozens of animals live eat and survive through dialogue and description Look too for inanimate objects to spring to life and talk about themselves a houseplant a stop sign a dollar bill and others Part Two gives you traditional fictional stories with lively characters and believable or not so believable storylines All of the stories leave you with a nugget of wisdom or a bit of a chuckle Sprinkled throughout Part Two are a few short articles of general interest non fiction Whether you read the stories in order or at random you will come away enriched with inspirational and encouraging accounts that stimulate your mind and nurture your soul Boston in Transit Steven Beaucher,2023-03-07 A richly illustrated story of public transit in one of America s most historic cities from public ferry and horse drawn carriage to the MBTA A lively tour of public transportation in Boston over the years Boston in Transit maps the complete history of the modes of transportation that have kept the city moving and expanding since its founding in 1630 from the simple ferry serving an English settlement to the expansive network of the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority or MBTA The story of public transit in Boston once dubbed the Hub of the Universe is a journey through the history of the American metropolis With a remarkable collection of maps and architectural and engineering drawings at hand Steven Beaucher launches his account from the landing where English colonists established that first ferry carrying passengers between what is now Boston s North End and Charlestown and sparing them what had been a two day walk around Boston Harbor In the 1700s horse drawn coaches appeared on the scene connecting Boston and Cambridge with the bigger better Omnibus soon to follow From horse drawn coaches horse drawn railways evolved making way for the electric streetcar networks that allowed the city s early suburbs to sprout culminating in the multimodal regional public transportation network in place in Boston today With photographs brochures pamphlets guidebooks timetables and tickets Boston in Transit creates a complete picture of the everyday experience of public transportation through the centuries At once a practical reference local history and travelogue this book will be cherished by armchair tourists day trippers and serious travelers alike Forget the Anorak Michael G Harvey,2011-11-08 Michael Harvey s new book brings to its reader the excitement of trainspotting in the 1950s and 60s the hobby s heyday It was the advent of the famous Ian Allan ABC Locospotters books that really gave the hobby the impetus as they gave transpotters all the information they required Forget the Anorak sets out to provide the reader with a personal account of what the hobby entailed teenagers roaming the railways of Britain sleeping on deserted platforms on porters trolleys bunking dimly lit depots and eluding capture travelling hundreds of miles on a platform ticket and stink bombs on the Underground You ll be able to smell the steam soot and unwashed socks and taste the boiled egg sandwiches the chips wrapped in newspaper and the hot jam doughnuts all washed down with warm Tizer Illustrated with Michael Harvey s own photographs and a selection of maps Forget the Anorak will appeal to anyone who experienced the golden days of trainspotting as well as to anyone interested in the social history of Britain after the Second World War Farewell to Steam John Leech,1968 Sierra Railway Stephen D. Mikesell,2016-02-08 The Sierra Railway is one of the most intact steam railroads in the United States It is operated today by California State Parks to interpret and celebrate the importance of steam railroading in California history Located in the Gold Rush town of Jamestown in Tuolumne County the railway began operations in 1897 and played an important role in developing the economy of Tuolumne and adjoining Calaveras County While nearly all other steam short line railroads in the United States were dismantled in the 1950s the Sierra line has survived in a remarkably complete condition The railway was a big hit among railfans who flocked to it as early as the 1930s and in increasing numbers in the 1950s Now operated as Railtown 1897 State Historic Park the steam operation of the railroad is very much alive British Railways in the 1950s and '60s Greg Morse,2012-09-20 As Britain moved from austerity to prosperity in the 1950s and 1960s it became clear that British Railways needed to modernise its equipment and rationalise its network if it was to hold its own in the face of growing competition from road and air transport After attempting to maintain pre war networks and technology in the 1950s a reversal of policy in the 1960s brought line closures new liveries and the last breath of steam as Dr Beeching and his successors strove to break even and build a new business from the old From Britannia to the Blue Pullman Evening Star to Inter City Greg Morse takes us through this turbulent twenty year period which started with drab prospects and ended with BR poised to launch the fastest diesel powered train in the world Interpreting Energy at Museums and Historic Sites

Leah S. Glaser, 2022-12-13 Experts all agree that human beings can mitigate climate change by changing how we use energy for heat light movement and production Stewards of heritage sites and collections can engage the public at the grassroots level to raise awareness about the cultural and socioeconomic reasons for past choices that have contributed to climate change This book will help cultural institutions identify ways to interpret new stories through historic places and resources especially if staff have made the commitment to go green Without place based context discussions about energy focus primarily on the science and not the human experience By reminding us of our past practices and values regarding energy production and use historic places can inspire different ways of thinking about transitioning to different energy sources and question the doctrine that high energy use is necessary for progress Public interpretation can expose the vast energy infrastructure and the impact of energy extraction production and use on place Historic sites offer place based contexts for visitors to interact with and think critically about the processes and the impact of energy development in for example a maritime village This book synthesizes science with the humanities outside of popular media and other politicized spaces to identify different kinds of energy resources in many historic collections or sites It supplements current calls for economic and policy changes because as stewards of historic places we need to do what we can in this all hands on deck moment to prepare for shared stewardship of our future Farewell to Steam L.
