From Silents to Sound Roy Liebman, 1998. Garbo talked, Gilbert self-destructed, and Chaplin refused that's about all many people know about silent film actors who faced the transition into talking pictures. Yes, Greta Garbo's talkie debut was successful, John Gilbert's was disastrous, and Charlie Chaplin did not deign to make one for over a decade. But there were many others, both stars and lesser lights, who also made the leap for at least one talking film. From Renee Adoree to Loretta Young, over 500 actors and actresses who made at least three silent films and had some starring or supporting roles in sound films are included in this reference work. For each performer, the place of birth, vital dates, nicknames, if any, real name, if different from stage name, and a source for filmographic data are included. This information is followed by capsule accounts of the performer's silent and sound careers along with contemporary reviews of selected talkies in which they appeared.

This greatly expanded over 18,500 entries versus 9,000 in the earlier edition, and updated edition includes everyone from John Aasen, an 8-foot 9-inch circus star who appeared in silent film comedies, to Vladimir Kosma Zworykin, who invented the iconoscope and kinescope that together constituted the first all-electronic television system. This is the most complete necrology available on people from the silent era. The entries are arranged alphabetically by professional name and include birth and death dates, the place of birth and death, real name when it differs from the professional name, married name for women, birth certificate date when available, age at death, and bibliographic data of any autobiography or biography. When available, the cause of death is also provided. Following these data, there is a reference to any obituary printed in The New York Times, Variety, or occasionally another publication, including the obituary's headline.
