Good Cops Bad Cops Memoirs Of A Police Psychiatrist:

Good Cops, Bad Cops Edward E. Shev,Jeremy Joan Hewes,1977 This book written by a police psychiatrist stresses the importance of selecting the best possible candidates for police work and the need for openly confronting personnel and recruitment problems It is important to talk about inherent difficulties of police work the lack of proper selection procedures and adequate supervision and the lack of appropriate administrative procedures A major problem is that police recruitment officials do not select the best possible individuals for police duty Approximately 35 percent of all police officers are estimated to be psychologically unsuited for police work and should never have been hired When weaknesses inevitably develop in police departments officers encountering problems are often not assisted by department administrators Interviewing entry level candidates for police work is referred to as the psychotherapeutic interview and this type of interviewing requires the use of psychiatrists in all phases of personnel selection and promotion and inservice counseling if it is to be successful The first part of the book contains a chronological account of the author s work with members of a municipal police department and city council in California The second part of the book deals with police officers and their families departments and profession and with the role of police in crime prevention An appendix explores psychological dynamics and the rescue fantasy motivation aspect of police work A bibliography a reader s guide and an index are included

FBI Law Enforcement Bulletin ,1979 Police, Firefighter, and Paramedic Stress John J. Miletich,1990-01-16 Public safety professionals work together in life and death situations During natural or transportation disasters industrial accidents shootings suicides or dozens of other instances police officers firefighters and paramedics are called upon to assist both injured and uninjured people Although often romanticized in television series and in films the real life tasks of public safety professionals are usually unpleasant restraining violent individuals and removing accident homicide and suicide victims from death scenes and always highly stressful They are frequently subjected to additional stress when their efforts are criticized by family members of the injured or deceased Although stress can be harmful even fatal police officers firefighters and paramedics can have more productive and satisfying lives when they learn to positively control stress rather than be controlled by it This English language bibliography consisting of more than 700 references covering the time period 1945 to early 1989 can help these and other professionals manage stress more effectively Source publications all of which are annotated include books articles conference proceedings theses government publications and dissertations The bibliography section is composed of six chapters addressing psychological and physiological factors the family substance abuse accidents and suicide with references arranged alphabetically by author surname A list of acronyms and author and subject indexes complete the work Of paramount importance to police officers firefighters and paramedics as well as their families this bibliography will provide legislators physicians nurses social workers psychiatrists psychologists and sociologists with extensive and substantial documentation on the stress filled work lives of these public safety professionals Police Officer
