French Historical Revolution:

The French Historical Revolution Peter Burke, 2015-01-20 This book provides a critical history of the movement associated with the journal Annales from its foundation in 1929 to the present. This movement has been the single most important force in the development of what is sometimes called the new history. Renowned cultural historian Peter Burke distinguishes between four main generations in the development of the Annales School. The first generation included Lucien Febvre and Marc Bloch who fought against the old historical establishment and founded the journal Annales to encourage interdisciplinary collaboration. The second generation was dominated by Fernand Braudel whose magnificent work on the Mediterranean has become a modern classic. The third generation deeply associated with the cultural turn in historical scholarship includes recently well known historians such as Emmanuel Le Roy Ladurie, Jacques Le Goff and Georges Duby. This new edition brings us right up to the present and contemplates the work of a fourth generation including practitioners such as Roger Chartier, Serge Gruzinski and Jacques Revel. This new generation continued much of the cultural focus of the previous Annales historians while diversifying further and becoming increasingly reflexive, a move that owes much to the sociocultural theories of Michel Foucault, Michel de Certeau and Pierre Bourdieu. Wide ranging yet concise, this new edition of a classic work of analysis of one of the most important historical movements of the twentieth century will be welcomed by students of history and other social sciences and by the interested general reader. History of The French Revolution From 1789 To 1814 François-Auguste Mignet, 2023-10-01

Of the great incidents of History none has attracted more attention or proved more difficult of interpretation than the French Revolution The ultimate significance of other striking events and their place in the development of mankind can be readily estimated It is clear enough that the barbarian invasions marked the death of the classical world already mortally wounded by the rise of Christianity It is clear enough that the Renaissance emancipated the human intellect from the trammels of a bastard mediaevalism that the Reformation consolidated the victory of the new learning by including theology among the subjects of human debate But the French Revolution seems to defy complete analysis Its complexity was great its contradictions numerous and astounding A movement ostensibly directed against despotism culminated in the establishment of a despotism far more complete than that which had been overthrown The apostles of liberty proscribed whole classes of their fellow citizens drenching in innocent blood the land which they claimed to deliver from oppression The apostles of equality established a tyranny of horror labouring to extirpate all who had committed the sin of being fortunate The apostles of fraternity carried fire and sword to the farthest confines of Europe demanding that a continent should submit to the arbitrary dictation of a single people And of the Revolution were born the most rigid of modern codes of law that spirit of militarism which to day has caused a world to mourn that intolerance of intolerance which has armed anti clerical persecutions in all lands Nor were the actors in the drama less varied than the scenes enacted The Revolution produced Mirabeau and Talleyrand Robespierre and Napoleon Siey s and H bert The marshals of the First Empire the doctrinaires of the Restoration the journalists of the Orleanist monarchy all were alike the children of this generation of storm and stress of high idealism and gross brutality of changing fortunes and glory mingled with disaster

very idea of historical epistemology in the French intellectual context The second section aims instead to highlight the main theoretical positions both epistemological and historiographical that would make it possible to trace a relative unity of intent among the authors who make up the canon of historical epistemology in their oppositional relationship to other intellectual trends Particular attention is also paid to defining a minor canon of this tradition represented by what is known as mathematical thought The third part of the volume focuses instead on reconstructing the anthropological sociological and political perspectives underlying the methodology employed by authors belonging to historical epistemology The three parts combined make for a uniquely broad yet focused book that is of interest to historians philosophers and scientists alike
