fail given our human natures While we may have thoughts of creating this process in our personal life we are unable to sustain our focus given the constant barrage of worldly distractions Slowly or quickly our resolve ebbs away and once more we re caught up in the choices that bring pain and shame into our life and the lives of those we love Nothing changes until we experience a change of heart This is not an event but rather a journey that guides life and transforms character This change of heart is a gift that is extended to those who have come to the realization that of themselves they can do nothing Surrender is the key word and that is likely a difficult concept to tolerate in our human condition Yet as you surrender your will on a regular basis your life purpose will slowly and consistently be revealed in the opportunities that arise With each succeeding door that opens there will come a flow of challenges blessings and gifts that serve to sustain and nourish continued growth Out of this process you will come to fully understand that there is a purpose for life and that the greatest joy comes from fulfilling that promise This is not a preachy book filled with solemn sayings rather it is a tribute to Jesus Christ who can work His purpose in any surrendered life My desire is that you join me on this pathway to personal transformation Your faith will grow as you come to understand the dynamic of surrender Out of your faith will grow a new and profound sense of hope that will complete its work in your life You cannot buy this gift or steal it as a possession yet it is offered freely to those who are committed to finding the truth

Embracing God's Future without Forgetting the Past Michael K. Girlinghouse, 2019-08-06 Many congregations today are dealing with changes that have led to decline and significant loss. In Embracing God's Future without Forgetting the Past, Michael K. Girlinghouse argues that until a congregation comes to terms with its perceived losses through a healthy process of grief, it will be paralyzed in the present and unable to think creatively about the future. Acknowledging and expressing grief will give the congregation the courage to redefine its relationship with the past and draw strength and encouragement from its memories as it steps into the future. Drawing on more than thirty years of ministry experience in varied settings and concurrent study and teaching about loss, grief, and nostalgia, Girlinghouse shows clergy, church staff, and lay leaders how they can work through the experience of loss and grief both personally and in their congregation. Part 1 discusses loss and grief using a contemporary task-based model for the grief process. It also introduces recent research on the value of nostalgia. In part 2, Girlinghouse helps leaders tell their congregation's story, including its losses, examine how that story fits in our current social context, and explore ways to accept the reality of its losses and express grief over them. Part 3 considers ways congregations can think more adaptively and creatively about the future without forgetting or devaluing the past.

Girlinghouse presents appreciative inquiry as a tool to discover and build on a congregation's strengths while coming to terms with its losses. Part 4 is about embracing God's future for the congregation, remembering forward, and making the changes necessary to move from the sadness of loss to the joy of taking up life again. Each chapter includes a Bible study and questions for reflection and discussion.

Jürgen Moltmann and the Work of Hope M. Douglas Meeks, 2018-10-31 These essays reflect on the future of Christian theology in light of the contributions Jürgen Moltmann has made in his prolific career as one of the world's foremost theologians They are not a prediction of what is coming in the future of theology since God's own actions and human history for that matter are not predictable Expressed here is hope for what future theology should take seriously from Moltmann's work Moltmann broke the mold of 19th and 20th century theology by focusing consistently on God's promises of a new heaven and a new earth The result was a theological imagination that is utterly realistic delighting in the creative tension of theology that lives in an unfinished open field of negations and possibilities Hope for the promised future of God casts its light on present sufferings that contradict that future The prominent themes here focus on the contradictions of God's promises and God's justice The essays see clearly the human domination that leads to the oppression of nature the hatred of the poor the dominance of one gender over the other the migration of those who find no home in their homeland and the wounds of neocolonialism For Moltmann these sufferings do not belong simply to ethics but to the heart of theology The doctrines of creation redemption and new creation are fully engaged in the political economic ecological and social problems of this time Here lies the way ecumenism will be reborn in the future The essays argue that theology should not turn aside from Moltmann's main theme of the resurrection of the Crucified One and of the presence of God's future in the present Hope opens our eyes to the work of God's Spirit of Life and the affirmation of eternal life in the present The future of Christian theology should not miss the theme of joy in the face of sin death and evil and the celebration of God's cosmic all inclusive future in which God will be at home in God's creation
